Little Stocks Had Wings.
Why Farmers Farm.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

FOUR prohibition agents investigating New York speakeasies and cabarets spent $75,000 in a short time.

They padlocked a few institutions, just as the old lady succeeded in mopping up a few pailsful of the ocean.

For champagne the agents paid $42 a bottle, for ginger ale $1.75. Even at that price, they must have been thirsty. They took their wives along. Perhaps the ladies drank the ginger ale.

Taxpayers must understand that you can't spend an evening in Texas Guinan's for nothing.

ALL Wall Street's little stocks had wings yesterday, or nearly all. They flew up joyously, undismayed by dear money.

It's all very well to put up interest rates in Wall Street. But that brings in money lenders from the Middle West and Europe, eager to get the 7 and 8 per cent.

As sea gulls fly inland to gobble up field mice, destroying pastures a thousand miles from the ocean, so distant money lenders flock to Wall Street and spoil the game of the "big boys."

WALL STREET believes that Hoover is elected already and yesterday bet 3½ to 1 on the Republican candidate.

Wall Street is mistaken occasionally. It was betting 4 to 1 against Woodrow Wilson, after Woodrow Wilson was actually elected. The odds will change before November.

RUSSIA names a dictator, with absolute power over crops, their production and distribution.

Our farmers will watch that experiment for the benefit of producer and consumer, but will not want any crop dictatorship here.

THE thing that reconciles a farmer to his lot is the fact that he is his own boss.

Tell him that others must decide what he shall plant, what price he shall ask, and he will join the crowd to the cities.

Men do not farm merely for profit. They farm because land ownership and management, plus independence, gives them intense pleasure. If profit were the only inducement, there would be no farmers.

RUSH of money almost swamped the big telephone and telegraph company yesterday. Stockholders, eager to buy more stock, paid in $56,000,000 in a few hours.

The company, having taken in $150,000,000 of new money, is now the biggest privately-owned company in the world.

A. T. and T. has assets of three and a half billion dollars. Considering its monopoly of telephone ownership in the United States, you know that its potential value runs far above ten billions.

AND a little while ago Uncle Sam was prosecuting poor Mama Standard Oil because she was climbing toward one little billion.

All is for the best, however, in the best possible of worlds. S. O. is now worth several times what it was previous to the prosecution.

SOME human beings passionately desire "to get even." A high-spirited Japanese will perform "hara-kiri" on the doorstep of a man who has insulted him.

The insulted one goes to the other's doorstep, rips open his abdomen and dies, believing he has vengeance on the other one.

In New York an unfortunate young woman poured turpentine over her clothes, lit them and burned herself to death, leaving a note wishing that a certain man who had offended her "may answer before God for this taking of my life."

MR. WORK asks for $4,000,000 as a Republican campaign fund. It is said Mr. Raskob will ask the same amount for the Democratic side.

Four million dollars is less than any Republican chairman has spent in a long time, to say nothing of contributions not accounted for.

FOUR Spanish aviators in a four-motored seaplane started off on a trip around the world yesterday. Guitars played and dark-eyed maids of Cadiz and elsewhere waved good wishes. They expect to go around the world, flying all the way, in 45 days. In forty-five years that will seem amazingly slow.

VARE LOW; PARALYZED AFTER STROKE

International News Service.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 2.—United States Senator-elect William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, was reported in a critical condition today at his summer home at 137 South Berkley square, Ventnor City, near here.

Mr. Vare suffered a stroke of apoplexy last night, but this was not revealed until this morning, when it was stated that Mrs. Vare also was prostrated and under the care of a physician because of shock from her husband's illness.

PARTIALLY PARALYZED

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Word was received here today that William S. Vare, Senator-elect, suffered a paralytic stroke at 10:30 p. m. yesterday at his summer home at Atlantic City.

He has been deprived of the use of his left arm and leg and for a time was unable to speak.

Dr. Ellwood R. Kirby, of Philadelphia, raced to Vare's bedside at 3 a. m. and upon his return here reported Mr. Vare's condition to be serious.

Mr. Vare is 60, the age at which his brothers, State Senator George N. and Edwin H. Vare succumbed. At the Vare home his wife and members of the family explained the Senator's condition was grave, and telephone calls were cut off for fear of disturbing him.

FALLS FROM BED

The illness of the United States Senator-elect came with startling suddenness. Yesterday he was at his office here attending to routine business. His secretary, Harry Snow, who was with him for several hours, reported that Senator Vare's condition then appeared to be unusually good.

Recently Mr. Vare had been ill for several weeks, during which time Dr. Kirby attended him. But he had recovered from this illness.

"From what the members of the Senator's family told me," said Dr. Kirby, "the Senator's illness manifested itself an hour or so after he had retired."

"He attempted to get out of bed, but the loss of the use of his left arm and leg crippled him and he fell to the floor. The sound of the fall awakened other members of the family and they ran to his room."

CHILD'S LEG CRUSHED WHEN HIT BY TROLLEY

Struck by a street car at Wood street and Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, when she darted across the street from her mother's side, Patricia Wright, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Wright, 630 Seventh street, Pitcairn, suffered a crushed leg. She was taken to Columbia Hospital.

"BRIDGE OF SAN LUIS REY" WINS PULITZER AWARD

The complete novel in next Sunday's Sun-Telegraph will be "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," prize novel of the year.

It is today the best seller, and critics in Europe and the United States have declared it is so fine that its place in the literature of all times seems assured.

Although nine editions have been run off the presses since it first appeared, it has just touched the rim of the circle of popularity. Added to the laurels that readers and writers everywhere have heaped upon it is the award by the committee which gave to its author, Thornton Wilder, the Pulitzer prize, $1,000 and the agreement that it is the outstanding work of the year.

Wilder, it has been announced, is now planning to spend three months in Europe on a walking tour. Gene Tunney, retired world champion heavyweight and scholar, will be his companion.

The charm of "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" lies for the most part, in its piercing insight into human life—and love. Philosophical, but written with transparent simplicity, it inquires into the fate that sent five people to their death when, without warning, the noted Peruvian bridge collapsed.

Five people—in the one hour that is spent reading this book—will become as intimate in the thoughts and feelings of the reader as brother and sister, wife or friend. Sunday, in The Sun-Telegraph Peach section, you'll find it. Save $2.40, by paying 10 cents for Pittsburgh's complete newspaper.

GROVE CITY OIL WELL STRUCK AT 300 FEET

GROVE CITY, Pa., Aug. 2.—At a depth of 300 feet, oil was struck in a well on the Allen farm at Blacktown. This is the first oil struck in that immediate vicinity.

RILED AT SHAKEUP

The storm that hit the Bureau of Police and left a trail of demotions debris, threatens renewed fury, according to wise ones who claim knowledge of the political barometer.

"For the good of the service," stereoptyped reason always offered when a police shakeup occurs, has failed to register in many quarters. 'mong ward chairmen there is said to be a strong feeling over the drastic action taken by Mayor Charles H. Kline, Director of Public Safety James M. Clark, and Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh in reducing a police inspector, several captains and lieutenants, and the promotion of other policemen and detectives to official positions. It is said that the ward leaders were not consulted in the shakeup, which is regarded as the opening gun in the battle to elect a mayor next year.

It seems certain that Mayor Kline again will be a candidate and will be opposed by James F. Malone, president of City Council. The police shakeup is credited as

RESCUE SHIPS MISS PLANE

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Capt. Frank T. Courtney, British aviator, and three companions on an attempted seaplane flight from the Azores to Newfoundland, made a forced landing in mid-Atlantic today and the first ocean liner to reach the position from which they called for help failed to locate them.

Courtney's plane landed in the ocean early this morning and in response to its radio calls for assistance all steamers anywhere in the vicinity turned from their courses to go to the rescue.

SEARCH FUTILE

At 11:15 eastern daylight time the Radio Marine Corporation in New York was advised that its station at Chatham, Mass., had information that the Liner President Hayes had reached the position Courtney gave in his distress calls and was searching for the seaplane. Two hours later no word had been received that the search had met with success.

Other liners that went to Courtney's assistance were the Minnewasas, the Cedric, the Celtic and the Columbus. The Pennland, the Gripsholm and the Berengaria aided by relaying wireless messages. The Cedric was not much further from the landing place of the plane than the President Hayes and it was believed she too must have been scouring the waters in the position Courtney gave.

Land stations had not intercepted direct radio messages from the airplane, but several ships relayed reassuring messages that Courtney had said he was in no immediate danger, although requesting immediate aid.

RADIO HOLDS UP

Apparently the crew of the flying boat retained the use of its radio, with which they first made known their predicament.

The plane, piloted by Capt. Courtney, left the Azores at 1:55 p. m., Eastern Standard Time, on Wednesday, for Newfoundland.

The fliers had hoped to reach Newfoundland by 10 a. m., Eastern

BEDROOM BURGLAR ROUTED

Awakening to find a burglar pointing a revolver at his wife, James A. Simpson, 35, of 1108 North Highland avenue, leaped from bed and chased the intruder downstairs and through a window on the first floor, early today.

The burglar had taken $24 from a dresser and was ransacking bureau drawers when Mrs. Simpson awoke. The burglar approached her with a drawn revolver and commanded her to "keep quiet." Simpson awoke and the man fled.

SUSPECT ARRESTED

On a description provided by the Simpsons, police later arrested Howard Gould, 21, of 212 First avenue, Dravosburg, in Washington boulevard. Taken to the Simpson home, he was identified, police say, as the burglar.

Gould denied the charge. He said he was a riverman. Neither money nor gun was found in his possession. He was held for further investigation.

BOY DIES IN AUTO FIRE; PINNED UNDER TRUCK

Pinned under a heavy truck which had overturned after a dive from the road on Logan's Ferry hill, early today, Ralph Angotti, 18, of 7427 Susquehanna street, was fatally burned. Gasoline seeping from the truck tank had soaked his clothing when the truck burst in flames. He died at noon in the Citizens General Hospital, New Kensington.

Arthur Crowley, of Hamilton avenue, driver of the truck, knocked unconscious when it turned over four times in its plunge down the embankment, recovered in time to pull Angotti from under the machine, but not before the boy had been burned fatally.

Crowley and Angotti, employed by the Kenny Transfer Company, of the South Side, were taking a load of goods to the New Kensington store of a grocery company. Groceries valued at $1,500 and the truck were destroyed.

HURT IN STREET FALL, PLUMBER SUCCUMBS

Our First Birthday

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph promises a better newspaper during its second year, and in reply to the birthday greetings says

THANK YOU

WATCH FOR YOUR POSTCARD

Several thousand Pittsburghers, all registered voters, have now received the double postal cards on which they have been asked by The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph to express their preference for President as between Hoover and Smith.

Answering the cards being used in this new straw vote entails no obligation on the voter. He or she merely marks a cross in the space allotted opposite the name of the candidate of choice. And drops the return part of the card in the nearest mail box.

For more than five weeks the voting machines were a continual source of interest to Pittsburghers. Not only did the people become acquainted with this new form of ballotting, but they had the opportunity to express a presidential preference. These same people, who had an intimate contact with the machines, will vote in November on adopting the mechanical style of ballotting at elections in Pennsylvania.

Smith continued his 2-to-1 lead over Hoover on the machines yesterday, with the greatest lead made at Braddock, where the Democrat was credited with 93 votes to his opponent's 26. Bridgeville showed a fairly even vote, but McKeesport gave a 2-to-1 verdict for Smith.

Results recorded on the machines yesterday follow:

"BIG BUSINESS MEN" TRAP NIGHT CLUBS

FLASH MESSAGE FROM ROOFTOPS TO ALL PITTSBURGH

PHOTOS BY PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH.

When the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph "beat" by three hours the other afternoon Pittsburgh newspaper with the news that Gene Tunney, heavyweight boxing champion, would quit the ring, the greatest upset in recent sporting news, the "Ocean Blues," showing this week at Penn Theater, climbed to the rooftops and flashed to Pittsburgh: "The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph is always first with the latest news." Just above, they wigwag part of the message for you.

HOW "BIG BUSINESS" MEN "TOOK" TEX

NEW YORK, August 2.—(AP.)—The inside story of how undercover prohibition agents hoodwinked Broadway today was made public in affidavits on file in Federal Court.

The reports of the agents revealed the easy manner in which the supposedly sophisticated hostesses, owners and headwaiters of the city's foremost night clubs accepted them as "big business men" and sold them liquor for which 138 persons from 26 clubs have been indicted.

Helen Morgan, Broadway actress, and one of the street's most popular hostesses, the affidavits said, appeared as sure that two of the agents were what they said they were—big business man from Dallas—that she offered to help one set up a night club in Dallas.

HOODWINK TEX

Texas Guinan, another affidavit said, invited the supposedly "big business men" to a party she was giving for a moving picture actress and also suggested they visit the night club of her brother Tom.

The affidavits give the names of seven agents who gathered evidence as Lon T. Tyson, Jacob A. Erkilla, Joseph L. White, S. David Beazell, B. F. Hargrove, John J. Mitchell and H. E. Herrick.

It was at the Frivolity Club, the affidavits showed, that the agents gained the prestige that won them welcome to the other clubs. The headwaiter "Albert," impressed by a liberal spending of money, presented them with a card to Helen Morgan's "Summer Home."

They had made visits there before, they said, but had been unable to buy liquor. But with the card from "Albert" they purchased champagne at $25 a quart, rye and Scotch whisky at $10 a pint and brandy at $15 a pint.

Other visits followed to Tex Guinan's Salon Royale, the Furnace Club, the Silver Slipper and the Ferndale Club.

At all of these places, the affidavits assert, the agents, some of whom were accompanied by their wives, were served liquors in full view of and with the knowledge of the headwaiters and hostesses.

COMPLIMENT ON DRINKS

In one of their trips to Helen Morgan's club, they were introduced to Miss Morgan, who joined them at their table and ordered brandy. When they complimented her on the quality of the drink, she responded: "It costs us $6.25 a quart wholesale."

Agent Tyson asked her if she would sell her club. She told him no, but "I will help you start one in Texas."

Miss Morgan, according to Tyson's affidavit, told them her club did not handle gin "because all the college boys drink gin. We have a lot of them here. They generally have only about $20 to spend in an evening and bring their own gin. They could not afford to pay our prices."

Miss Morgan is quoted as saying that after the raid on her club last winter she made an arrangement with "Campbell, whereby he doesn't bother us." She evidently referred to Prohibition Administrator Maurice Campbell, the agent added.

Miss Guinan, who has contended she merely is a hostess and has nothing to do with the ownership of her club, was represented in one of the affidavits as sharing in the profits.

Tyson's itemised expense account says:

June 13—At Helen Morgan's: One pint whisky, two bottles of ginger ale, one quart of champagne, supper $82.75.

June 19—At Helen Morgan's: Drinks and supper, $96.60.

June 2—At Silver Slipper Club with Mrs. Tyson only: Cover charge, dinner and ginger ale, $17.80. Two quarts champagne, $50.

The champagne the agents purchased, Federal officials said, was found on analysis to be only charged white grape juice spiked with alcohol. The rye and Scotch whiskies were synthetic stocks of poor quality.

BLINDED BY UMBRELLA, TOPPLES INTO SEWER

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 2.—When an umbrella she was carrying during a shower obstructed her view, Mrs. William Zimmerman, 60, fell into a sewer excavation 11 feet deep near her home. She was rescued by neighbors. Her injuries were slight.

ROSS TOWNSHIP ANNEXATION APPEALED

An appeal against the city of Pittsburgh's action in annexing a portion of Ross township was filed in Quarter Sessions Court today by Attorney John E. Winner for the Ross township school board. The proceeding was signed by Paul Hughes, secretary of the school board, and avers the act of 1874, under which the city based its right to annex the district, is unconstitutional.

The appeal also claimed that the petition was not signed by three-fifths of the property owners of Ross township and that many of its signers were not property owners and not residents of that district.

The section annexed by the city is bounded by Ivory, Rodenbaugh, Cleveland and Morrison avenues.

HITS WIFE WITH POP BOTTLE

Struck on the head with a pop bottle, wielded, police say, by her husband, Mrs. Rose Johnston, 34, of 1209 Fifth avenue, is in Mercy Hospital with a probable fracture of the skull. She may die.

Frank L. Johnston, 38, the husband, is a prisoner in the Center Avenue Police Station. The couple battled in their home at 4:30 o'clock this morning, the police declare, but they have been unable to learn the cause of their fight.

CRASH KILLS PGH. GIRL

JOHNSTOWN, PA., Aug. 2.—Her skull fractured Sunday in an automobile accident, Rita Bialas, 9, daughter of Albert Bialas, 4749 Wallingford street, Pittsburgh, died last night in Memorial hospital. Her father and several others were slightly injured in the crash.

MERIT BADGES GIVEN TO 10 BOY SCOUTS

Merit badges were awarded to 10 Boy Scouts, and 21 others were advanced in rank at a general council court of honor held last night in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

In connection with the program, L. B. Stevens presented certificates to 36 young men who have completed the first year of the five-year progressive training course now being conducted by the Allegheny County Council. Completion of this course constitutes complete training in scout leadership.

Airplane Missed by Ships

Standard Time, today, but it appeared from weather reports that even had they remained in the air it was unlikely that they would have reached their goal before early afternoon.

The position of the plane was reported by several ships as 42 north 41 West.

The Celtic had reported hearing distress signals from the Courtney plane at 9:30 a. m., Greenwich mean time, which corresponds to 4:30, Eastern Standard Time.

If this message was sent at about the time the airplane was forced down, Capt. Courtney had been flying 14 hours and 35 minutes. He had expected to maintain a flying speed of 100 miles an hour, which would have brought him at the hour he was forced down to within 400 miles of his goal. The position given in the radio messages, however, indicated that he was much further from land. It was apparent that the winds had cut down his speed.

SPANIARD TURNS BACK

HUELVA, Spain, Aug. 2.—(INS.)—Forced down here by motor trouble, Commander Ramon Franco and his three companions will resume their round-the-world flight tomorrow.

Franco favors starting tomorrow instead of today because tomorrow is the anniversary of the beginning of Christopher Columbus's voyage to America in 1492. Franco had originally intended starting his flight from Cadiz tomorrow, but had made yesterday's hop-off because of extremely favorable weather condition.

With his companions, Captains Ruiz de Alda and Gallarza, of the Spanish Royal Flying Forces, and the civilian mechanic, Pablo Rada, Franco hopped off from Cadiz, less than 100 miles southeast of here, at 7:30 a. m. yesterday. Encountering slight trouble with one of the four motors of the huge Dornier seaplane Numancia, Franco turned back and made a safe landing here.

The fliers spent the night as the guests of the Rabida Monastery here, famed as a haven used by Columbus during the years when he was trying to persuade the Spanish court to finance his voyage of discovery.

News of the turning back of the Spanish fliers caused great disappointment throughout Spain.

MINER ONE OF EIGHT DEAD IN WRECK FIRE

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Mrs. Frederick Collins, of West Wyoming, was notified by officials of the Burlington Railroad, that her husband, Frederick Collins, 52, had been identified as one of the eight men burned to death in a freight wreck on that road on July 29, near Guernsey, Wyo. She may have the body sent home. Collins was a miner and owing to slack work in the anthracite mines left here six weeks ago to seek work in the West. His widow and a daughter survive.

POLITICIANS ARE RILED

the mayor's first move to strengthen his political ramparts against the Malone campaign.

Malone had little to say when the question was put to him as to whether he considered the storm in the police bureau as designed to sweep his supporters out of positions of power, and replace them with men friendly to the Kline candidacy. When asked directly, Malone said:

"You will have to ask Mayor Kline about the purpose of these moves, if there is any purpose other than that announced. I am kept busy attending to my own duties and am not concerned with any so-called opening shots or overt acts."

Trustee Cited for Contempt

Elliott Frederick, for years a trustee in bankruptcy cases, today was ordered to show cause why he should not be declared in contempt of court, in nine orders signed by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker. The orders are returnable August 14.

Frederick is alleged to have failed to file final and supplementary reports in bankruptcy cases in which he was trustee, as ordered by Watson B. Adair, referee in bankruptcy.

The bankruptcy cases on which the orders were made are:

Benjamin Shieman & Co., Euclid Gas Coal Company, Morris Samuel Perelstein, trading as the Carter Shoe Company; Lorch Brothers Company, Wentzell Baking Company, Morris Levy and Solomon Feld, individually and as partners trading as the Pittsburgh Bedding Company; Mary B. McKnight, trading as the McKnight Realty Company; Eagle Paint and Varnish Company, and the Replacement Auto Parts Company.

CHARGE MOTHER KILLED BABY

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 2.—(AP.)—District Attorney C. A. Snyder announced today that he would ask for a verdict of murder in the first degree for Mrs. Vera Berger, 24, of Cressona, who is alleged to have confessed that she strangled to death her 8-months-old daughter on July 23.

The case will be presented to the September sitting of the grand jury, and if indictments are returned Snyder will ask for immediate trial.

Mrs. Berger's arrest followed the discovery of the child's body in the coal cellar of George Barnes, of Arnauts Addition, near here, yesterday. Mrs. Berger, a distant relative of Barnes, had been housekeeper for him since her separation from her husband, three months ago. Two other children are in custody of her husband, John Berger, living at Cressona.

JOHNSTOWN BLAST BRINGS "GAS" PROBE

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 2.—Aroused by the fate of four workmen killed in a sewer explosion last week resulting from gasoline escaping from a service station, Fire Chief Harry Schultz today began an examination of all gasoline stations in the city limits in search of possible leaks in pumps and pipe lines.

JOHNSTOWN BOARDER HELD FOR THREATS

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 2.—Alleged to have threatened to kill Mrs. Frances Tylinda, his boarding mistress, at whom he fired several blank cartridges with a revolver, John Kubis, was jailed, pending trial.

SMITH PLEDGES AID TO FARM LEADERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—After a two-hour conference today with George N. Peek, a farm leader from Illinois, Gov. Smith reiterated that he stood on the farm plank of the Democratic platform and indicated that he had not yet worked out in his own mind how agricultural surpluses should be handled for the benefit of the farmer.

The Democratic presidential nominee declared that in carrying out his plan, if elected, to obtain the advice of farm leaders and economists on working out the surplus problem he would call on Republicans like Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, as well as Democrats, to assist him.

ROBERT E. LEE RACERS AHEAD OF RECORD

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Roaring toward the mouth of the Ohio at 30 miles an hour the Bogie and the three sportsmen aboard her today were on the north end of their 1,153.6 mile race with the ghost of the Robert E. Lee.

They expect to end the grind tomorrow at St. Louis as did the old packet in the race with the Natchez when the record of 90 hours and 31 minutes between New Orleans and St. Louis was set on July 4, 1870.

When the motorboat showed her red stern light to her home port, Memphis, at 11:35 o'clock last night she was more than three hours ahead of the Robert E. Lee's time. Dr. Louis Leroy, owner of the launch, and Robert Hunter, both of Memphis, and Capt. A. A. Faris, Hickman, Ky., who make up the crew, were optimistic over prospects of breaking the record.

None of the men had slept since the race begun. Dr. Leroy had been at the wheel continuously for 52 hours and 8 minutes, while Hunter has nursed the motor and Capt. Faris, a river pilot, has picked their course.

RAILWAYS MEN TO CONFER

A conference between officials of the street railways union and staff officers of the Pittsburgh Railways Company will be held next Monday afternoon in the office of Thomas Fitzgerald, vice president of the company, it was learned. Both groups hope to iron out differences growing out of placing 220 trainmen on the extra list, due to reduction in layover time and route schedules, following a decline in revenue during the summer depression.

The readjustment of the railways to meet the loss in revenue brought the statement from crews that the cut in schedules might encroach on the safety margin by speeding up the cars. Railways officials stated that the increase speed was less than a mile an hour, bringing the average up to 9½ miles an hour.

ARREST CHIROPRACTOR AGAIN AT UNIONTOWN

UNIONTOWN, Aug. 2.—Awaiting sentence on one charge of practicing medicine without a license, Dr. K. J. Whaley, local chiropractor was rearrested yesterday. A patient said to have been sent to Dr. Whaley was treated, the county authorities allege. Dr. Whaley's bond was placed at $2,500.

Needles, Poison Fail, But Noose Does Trick

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Adolph Totryk, 35, spent yesterday killing himself.

First he swallowed a handful of needles with no apparent impairment of his health. Next he concocted a potion of tooth paste, shoe polish and wood alcohol which he washed down with vinegar.

Still alive, he tightened two ties about his neck and was strangled to death.

His roommate found the body.

16 DROWN HERE DURING JULY

Sixteen persons, mostly bathers seeking relief from the heat, were drowned in local waters in July, the coroner's report discloses. Five died directly from effects of the heat.

Alcoholism claimed 11 lives, a record above the average. Twenty-four were killed by automobiles and four drivers were held for manslaughter. There were eight murders recorded, 11 suicides and one death from hydrophobia among the 244 cases investigated.

AWARD STATION CONTRACT

East Liberty's combination police station and engine house at Broad street and Euclid avenue was brought a step nearer today when Public Safety Director James M. Clark awarded contracts for the structure, totaling $252,000. The general contract went to Max Parker at his bid of $219,775. The new building will supplant the present Frankstown Avenue Police Station and quarters of No. 8 Engine Company, Highland avenue and Broad street.

NEW PLAN PROPOSED IN ROAD CONSTRUCTION

County commissioners yesterday referred to county engineers a request to change the type of construction on the new Homestead Park road. Pittsburgh Railways and Mifflin township engineers and the P. H. Cunningham Contracting Company submitted the plan. An extra row of paving block, outside the track, and block inside instead of concrete, would make the road permanent, the request explained.

Fatal Wreck and Slashed Arm Due to Bees

MANISTEE, Mich., Aug. 2.—(INS.)—A bee which flew into the family automobile was blamed today for the death of Mrs. Frank E. James, 43, Chicago. Her jugular vein was severed when the machine crashed into a ditch while her husband, who was at the wheel, was attempting to kill the insect.

BRADFORD, Pa., Aug. 2.—(AP.)—A bee buzzing around his head while he was butchering a hog made Morris Christensen, 23, of Mount Jewett, a patient in the hospital here, his condition serious. Christensen slashed at the bee with his heavy knife, missed, and struck his right arm, almost severing it above the elbow. Hospital officials believe amputation may be necessary.

Annually Miss Anna Smith, former recreational chairman, Parent-Teachers' Association, Liberty School, conducts a summer "party" for the pupils of that district. Here they line up for refreshments.

FUN

There was, you could expect, all sorts of fun. The Affair was held on the school grounds, Ellsworth avenue at Ivy street. Those who helped entertain the youngsters included Mrs. H. R. Nash, Miss Jeane Maier and Mrs. R. B. Graham. Here, the children enjoy—well, you can see that they're enjoying it.

ICE CREAM

Ice cream, it was just about unanimously agreed, ranked first as the best part of the whole "party." These youngsters alternated in spending their time with the ice cream and the water, that spraying water.

Oil Blast Toll Now 9 Dead

International News Service.

VINCENNES, Ind., Aug. 2.—The death toll of the Indian Refining Company's still explosion at Lawrenceville, Ill., west of here, rose to nine today, with the deaths of six more of the 51 injured men.

Physicians feared that at least 10 more of the injured would die.

The still exploded during a fire at the plant, with a deafening roar, and showered more than 150 fire fighters with burning oil. The men most seriously hurt inhaled the flames.

Thirty-six of the injured were rushed to the Good Samaritan Hospital here, while 15 received treatment at Lawrenceville.

TWO MORE DIE UNDER AUTOS

Two more automobile fatalities were reported to the coroner's office last night.

James McCartney, 58, of 629 Noblestown road, died in the South Side Hospital of a fractured skull suffered when he was struck by an automobile driven by K. F. Pietzsch, of 1522 Obey avenue, near his home.

His chest crushed by the wheels of a heavy truck, Clarence Barnett, 40, a Negro, of 9 Haydon street, died en route to Passavant Hospital. The truck, driven by William H. Wade, 40, of 2141 Hemans street, struck Barnett at Webster avenue and Kirkpatrick street.

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 2.—An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth may be all right, but when it comes to be a dahlia for an adding machine and another dahlia for a typewriter——.

C. Mitchell & Sons, coal dealers at Mill Village, have two attractive bunches of dahlias, but they are out their office fixtures, they told the district attorney Wednesday.

When Mr. Mitchell arrived at his office, he found the bouquets on his desk, two machines were missing and the cash drawer was looted of pennies.

DENTIST SLAYS FAMILY TO AVOID POVERTY

International News Service.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Aug. 2.—"I was deeply in debt and loved my wife and children so much that I didn't want to see them suffer."

Calmly puffing a cigar and speaking in a detached, unemotional manner, Dr. Arthur F. Woolsey, 37, prominent Elizabeth dentist, thus confessed that he murdered his wife and two children yesterday, according to police. After summoning police to his home, he was charged with murder and held without bail for the grand jury.

In his alleged confession, Dr. Woolsey said that he owed a $9,000 mortgage on his house and that he owes $8,000 in various other debts. He felt he was "going on the rocks," he said, and decided that the best way to save his wife and children was to kill them. He planned this a few months ago, he said.

Dr. Woolsey said he fired three shots at his wife, one entering her head and the other two her breast; shot his son, Arthur, 7 years old, and then killed his daughter, Mary, 3 years old, according to police. The wife, Marguerite Woolsey, was 32 years old.

After he had shot his wife and children, Dr. Woolsey told police, he went to the kitchen and prepared his breakfast. Then, he said, he washed the bodies, laid them out in their beds, and called police.

FATHER LOSES SONS

ROBERT AND WILLIAM DUNLAP

Robert Dunlap, Willock, has lost the court fight for the custody of his two sons, Robert, 8, and William, 6, when the court gave the lads into the keeping of their aunt, Mrs. Hettie Grieco, 1207 Brookline boulevard, sister of the boys' mother, who is dead. The father remarried and the children were taken for a visit to their aunt, who, Dunlap said, refused to give them up unless he divorced their stepmother. Judge Elder Marshall had a private talk with the boys and then placed them in care of Mrs. Grieco.

Rap Flood Control Here

Control of floods in the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers by a system of reservoirs has been found not practicable and has been disapproved by the War Department. This announcement was made today by Maj. Jarvis J. Bain, United States engineer in charge of the Pittsburgh district waterways, following a survey by engineers authorized by an act of Congress in 1924.

Appeal from the report of the engineers is open to interested parties, Maj. Bain announced. The report held that greater benefit would accrue to the region affected through hydro-electric development of water resources in the district and the consequent flood prevention work that must accompany it.

The engineers based their report on the following major grounds:

1—The capitalized cost of flood prevention by reservoirs is from $33,345,000 to $39,388,000 in excess of the value of all benefits, including flood relief, navigation, power development and improvement of low water flow, dependent on the reservoir plan adopted.

2—No partial or reduced system of flood control reservoirs could be found that was economic.

3—It is believed that greater material benefits will ensue to the whole community from the hydro-electric development of the water resources of this region with such incidental flood benefits as will accrue rather than in using them primarily for flood control at a cost greatly in excess of their worth.

4—Although it is possible that further development in the flood zone entailing increased flood damages may some day make the project feasible, the heavy carrying charges until that time render immediate prosecution of the project uneconomic.

5—Continuation of the existing practice of relief by local flood protective works, where such is feasible in those limited and congested areas subject to high flood loss, appears to be the only economic solution.

Tooth Aching He Dares Sea for Ship's Aid

PANAMA, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—The pangs of a toothache forced Joseph Hamma, keeper of the Castile Island light, to venture out in the heavy seas in a rowboat yesterday and stop the steamer Lilian Lukenbak to get a remedy. He flew the British flag reversed as a signal of distress and after receiving medicine he returned to his lonely vigil while the vessel continued on to Cristobal.

ROGER W. BABSON

Very few cities are so situated, surrounded by natural resources, as the City of Pittsburgh. You have coal, water, iron and timber, and you used to have men who were great and daring leaders. All Pittsburgh needs to become the greatest manufacturing city of the world is to develop some more men of character, courage and vision. In the end, men make values, even as souls make men.

McGovern Ignored In Probe

A suggestion that a committee be appointed to investigate conditions in Juvenile Court, for which $5,000 was appropriated last February, and that J. H. W. Simpson, expert on county courts, be appointed one of the three members was ignored by County Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and E. V. Babcock yesterday. Commissioner Charles C. McGovern made the motion.

McGovern charged Armstrong and Babcock with amending his original motion, which provided that each commissioner appoint one member, so that Armstrong has the power to appoint all three.

While McGovern protested, Babcock and Armstrong took up the request of Attorney W. H. McNaugher for a $4,000 appropriation for a new conference room and a change in the heating system in the Gumbert school for girls, and approved the expenditure.

YOUTH BARRED AT BARBECUES

Barbecue stands are off the visiting list of James Mullen, 17, Langley High School junior. Pleading guilty to a charge of entering a building, Mullen was paroled for two years by Judge E. W. Marshall in Criminal Court today.

He had been to a camp on Neville Island and told the court that while leaning against a window of a gasoline station, run in connection with a barbecue stand, he had accidentally broken the window. He had never been in trouble before and bore a good reputation, but the court ordered him to remain away from roadside lunch stands.

At 5 p. m., when this photograph was made, the doors were barred while several bodies remained to be identified and the chapel was not reopened until 9 a. m. the next day. Coroner W. J. McGregor has stated that hereafter the morgue would be open at all hours, day and night, when bodies remain to be identified.

After 56 days in the county jail for non-payment of $12.32 taxes, Leonard Ginn, 25, Coraopolis Negro, was free today.

Ginn's plight may result in legislation covering such cases. Jackson declared he would make an effort to have introduced in the next Legislature a bill providing that a citizen jailed for non-payment of tax be permitted his liberty to earn money to pay.

PENNSY PAY RAISE SEEN

25,000 SHARE BOOST, SAYS UNION HEAD

LANCASTER, Pa., Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Calvin W. Long, chairman of the Pennsylvania System Fraternity, announced yesterday that about 25,000 employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad would receive increases in pay ranging from one cent an hour to $17 a month, as the result of a series of conferences between representatives of the fraternity and the railroad.

The increases, according to Mr. Long, will be effective as of July 16, and will effect the lower salaried groups of employes.

Those who would be benefitted include trackmen, pumpers, chauffeurs, cooks, water service repairmen, blacksmiths, tinsmiths, boilermakers, motor car repairmen, cabinet makers and bench carpenters.

Mr. Long said that about 1,100 of the 25,000 employes whom the raise would effect, are in Lancaster, Dauphin and Chester counties.

NEWS UNCONFIRMED

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 2.—(AP.)—J. F. Phelan, superintendent of the Philadelphia division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, said tonight that while a study of the wage situation of certain groups of employes of the railroad has been under way during the past six or eight months, no official announcement of a raise in salaries has been made from the general offices of the Pennsylvania System.

COMMISSIONERS CLASH OVER ISSUE OF BONDS

County Commissioners clashed yesterday over the bond issue when Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and E. V. Babcock, over C. C. McGovern's protest, authorized the sale of $5,003,000 in bonds to start road, bridge and park improvements.

The controller was told to advertise for bids for the printing and sale of the bonds, although McGovern claimed the sale of bonds was being authorized on a "lead pencil memoranda without opportunity for intelligent study or discussion on the projects to be started first." He asked for time to properly study the projects.

The work for which the bonds were ordered sold includes:

McKees Rocks Bridge—$303,000 provided in the 1924 bond issue for engineering and other expenses.

Bridges—$1,000,000. South Tenth Street Bridge, $100,000; West End-North Side Bridge, $150,000; 29 minor bridges, $750,000.

Parks—$1,000,000 for taking over of North and South County parks now held for the county by agreement.

Boulevards—$1,700,000. Saw Mill Run boulevard, $475,000; Allegheny River boulevard, $475,000; Ohio River boulevard, $450,000; Saw Mill Run boulevard, $300,000.

Roads—$1,000,000 for construction, reconstruction, widening, improving and joint aid of roads in various sections of the county.

Norman F. Brown, director of the county department of public works, declared that plans and specifications would be ready when the commissioners cared to advertise.

McGovern's tilt came when County Solicitor W. Heber Dithrich presented a penciled page with the notations of the improvements.

SOLD TO WED, GIRL CHARGES

UNIONTOWN, Aug. 2.—Charging that her father sold her into marriage for $100 and seared her back with a hot poker when she objected, Helen Gornock, 15, yesterday caused the arrest of two young men at Smithfield against whom serious charges were made. A third man is being sought in connection with the case.

The two under arrest are William Collins and Arthur Foye. Police say they are searching for Howard Hardin. According to the girl, the three stuffed a handkerchief into her mouth and dragged her into a field near the Smithfield ball park.

She told police she came from Superior, Wis., where her father sold her to a man for $100. When this man tired of her, after her marriage, she was resold to his brother for $50, she said, but managed to escape to Smithfield, where she has been living with the William Totten family.

WOMAN SAYS GAMBLER GAVE WRONG ADDRESS

J. B. Cross, 47, fined $50 last Monday in Morals court on a charge of keeping a gambling house in the Gobos hotel, 10 Smithfield street, gave his address as 1912 Main street, Sharpsburg, when arrested. Mrs. C. S. Heffner of 1912 Main street, Sharpsburg, says Cross does not reside at that address and the family has been caused annoyance by the use of that street address in a police case.

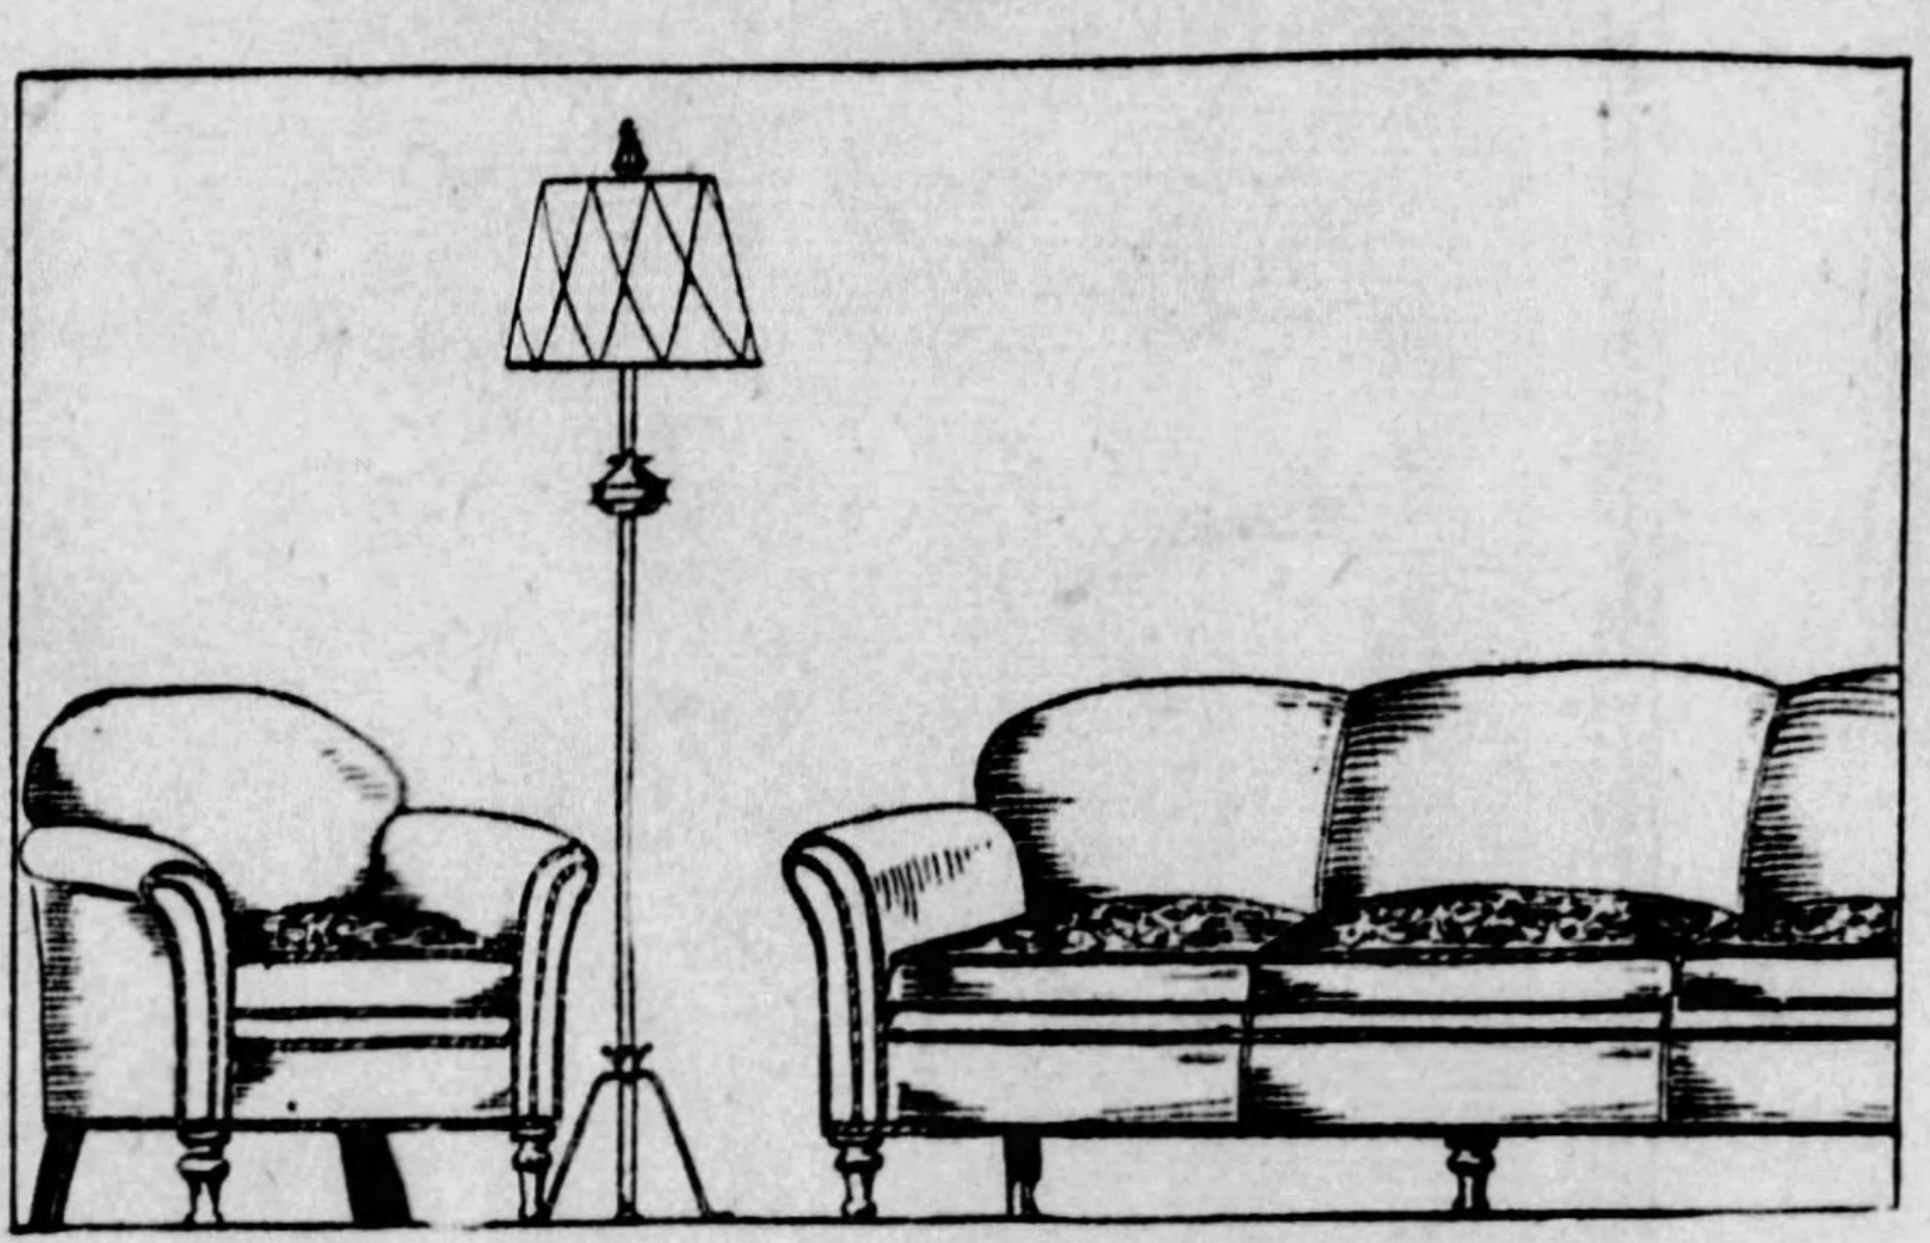
There Is No Question In Anyone's Mind As to What Store Is Outstanding In Pittsburgh For the Excellence and Decorative Quality of Its Furniture

—but there is a question in the minds of some as to whether this furniture is possible to their limited budgets.

These Are Typical August Furniture Sale Values

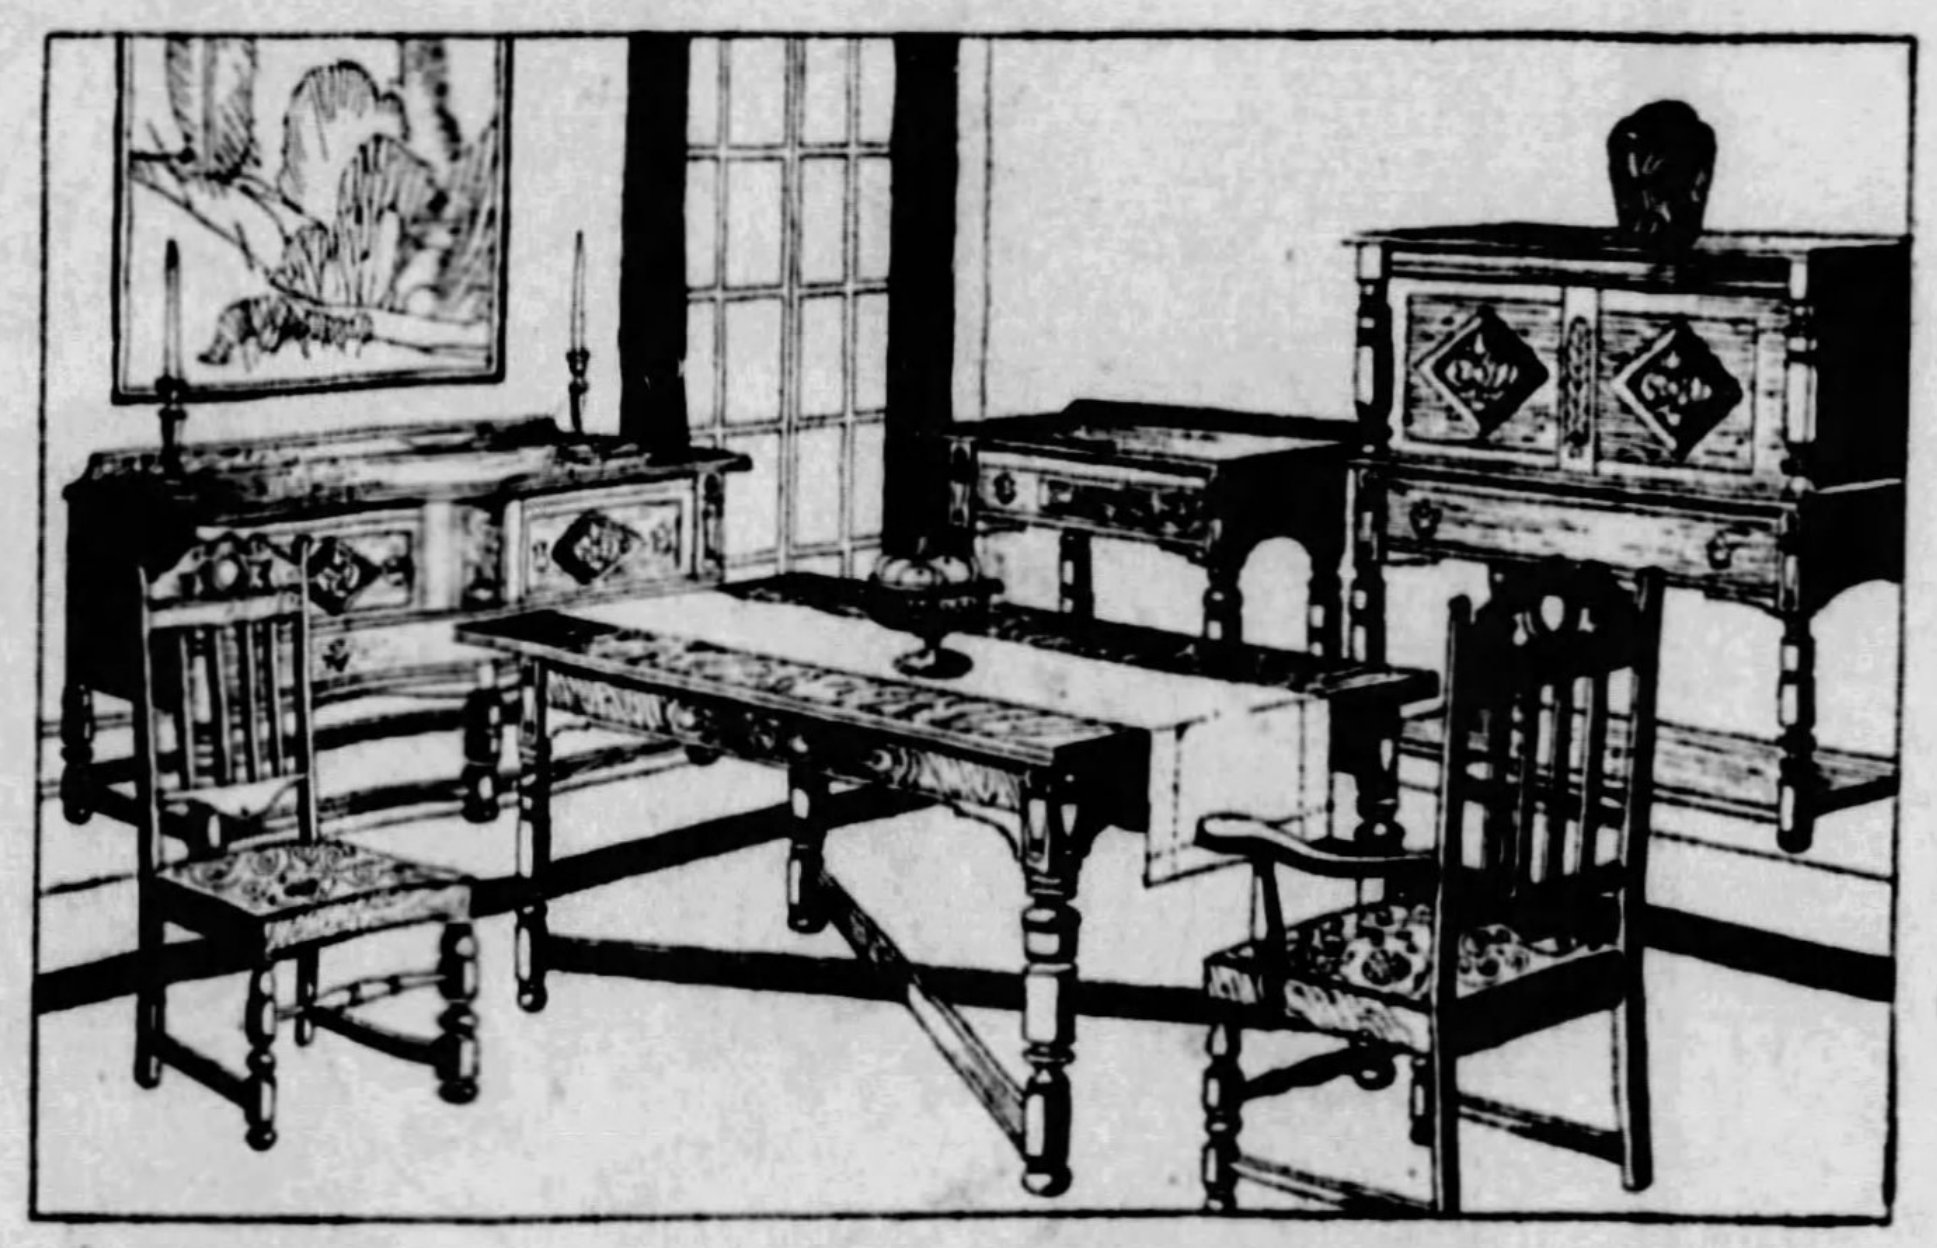


Davenport and Chair Suite, $240

One of the new, modern style davenports with an easy chair to match. Upholstered in an antique style velvet, the reverse side of the big, comfortable seat cushions is covered in a colorful damask. A handsome suite, with a particularly inviting comfortable appearance. Davenport, $160.00; Chair, $80.00.

Four-Piece Bedroom Suite, $255

Of walnut and gumwood with fine burl panels outlined with round beading. A chest of drawers, dressing table, dresser and full-sized bed. The suite may also be had in mahogany and gumwood.



Ten-Piece Dining Room Suite, $325

Following an English design of the 17th century, the crossed stretcher of the table, and the heavy turned legs being fine examples of that day. Characteristically carried out in oak; or in walnut and gumwood. A 66-inch buffet, silver cabinet, server, 8-foot extension table and six chairs.

The chief purpose of the August Furniture Sale is to dispel this doubt from the minds of ambitious young people and others whose sense of good taste recognizes the superior Horne qualities but who hesitate at the possibility that Horne furniture may be beyond their means.

The August Sale refutes this suggestion convincingly by showing furniture of Horne grade and kind which is not only moderately priced, but which is actually lower priced than these people's own estimates of furniture costs in their most conservative budgets.

Not only is this true, but the Joseph Horne Co. Plan of Deferred Payments permits furniture to be paid for over a period of months, a reasonable first payment being sufficient for immediate delivery.

August is a time, above all others, when the good taste and sound quality, which has given Horne furniture its sterling reputation, is available to all who desire it, under the most favorable circumstances.

The Dream Cottage has been entirely re-fitted with examples of special August values to illustrate this point. It will be a revelation to many to see at what small cost it is possible to furnish a room, or a complete house, with Horne furniture.

It is a very real house, typical in size and construction with the average modest small home, and offers home-makers a very graphic illustration of what is possible in their own homes, with the right sort of furnishings, which cost no more than the wrong kind.

D. M. DELMAS DIES

BASED DEFENSE OF THAW ON DEMENTIA AMERICANA

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Delphin M. Delmas, attorney for Harry Thaw in the latter's murder trial more than 20 years ago, died here yesterday. He was 84 years of age and had practiced law until a few months ago.

Delmas was born in France, April 14, 1844. He came to this country at the age of 10, later attending Santa Clara College at San Jose, Cal., from which he was graduated in 1862. He took up the study of law at Yale University and was admitted to the bar in Connecticut.

His California practice included long activity in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Delmas leaves two daughters, Mrs. Elsie D. Barnes and Miss Antoinette Delmas, both of Santa Monica.

As chief of counsel for Thaw, Delmas introduced the legal phrase "dementia americana" as a defense for the Pittsburgher who was on trial in New York for the slaying of Stanford White, noted architect, because of the latter's attentions to Mrs. Thaw.

TRIAL SPREAD FAME

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Delphin M. Delmas came out of the West 20 years ago to act as chief of counsel for Harry K. Thaw, when Thaw was on trial as the slayer of Stanford White.

Jurists still recall his summation to the jury in that trial, when he coined the phrase "dementia americana" to describe the species of insanity he contended his client suffered.

"I care not whether you give it a name," he told the jury in describing Thaw's affliction. "But it is a species of insanity which is recognized in every state of the Union. It is a species which may be labeled, and which I label, dement americana."

Later he explained that he used the term as descriptive of the "unwritten law" and of the state of mind of every man who takes the law into his own hands when another has entered and broken up his home.

In the West, Delmas was recognized as an able lawyer before the Thaw trial. Out there he was called "the Napoleon of the bar." But although he placed William Randolph Hearst in nomination for the presidency at the Democratic national convention at St. Louis in 1904, the East did not know him until he took his place at the head of Thaw's counsel table.

Seven Ways In One To End Foot Misery

German science has improved the oldest formula in the world for giving instant relief from the pains of sore, tired, aching, burning feet, as well as corns, callouses and bunions.

Away back in Biblical times the people of the Holy Land soothed their feet with unguents of frankincense and myrrh to get relief from the pains of burning feet caused by walking on the hot desert sands, just as yours burn from walking on hot city pavements. This world-old formula has now been improved by modern science to combine in a single white, greaseless cream all the elements necessary to give quick relief from any kind of foot misery. To frankincense and myrrh, which are still the best known ingredients for taking the fever out of burning feet, there have been added five important ingredients:

One to take the ache out of your feet and end foot misery instantly. One to soften hard corns, callouses and bunions and give relief from pain. One to clear away dead sloughing skin between the toes and peel off the hard, calloused skin after softening without affecting healthy skin. One to end excessive perspiration and banish foot odors. A combination of three antiseptic ingredients in emollient that the dry, tender, cracking skin is left soft and pliant, ending foot misery in a few minutes' time.

You will be amazed at the quick results you get from this scientific improvement of an ancient remedy. No more pain, bother or fuss. Just rub on Coolene—it takes only two minutes. At all good drug and department stores, such as: May Drug Stores.

SKYWARD By Commander Richard E. Byrd

Pioneer Flights Opposed As Result of Numerous Tragic Endings

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Commander Byrd first trained for a seafaring profession but later took to an aviation career. He has explained the dangers of pioneer flying and the adventures of the first fliers who crossed the Atlantic Ocean. During the war he established an air unit at Halifax, N. S. He advocated the creation of a Bureau of Aeronautics in the Navy Department. He described the flight of the America across the Atlantic and its ultimate crash into the water off the coast of France.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Hazardous Endeavors Often Justifiable

CHAPTER XXXII.

DUE to the loss of 30 lives in connection with transoceanic flights during 1927, there has developed a strong public sentiment against spectacular flights, and the modicum of man's success in such flights was lost in an uproar of protest against the useless expenditures of so many lives.

I believe thoroughly in spectacular flights provided they are made after proper preparations and with a constructive end in view, and I have constantly decried such flights made purely for the sake of notoriety. Whether or not the failures of 1927 outweighed the good done to commercial aviation by the successes, I do not know.

But I wish to say with all the emphasis with which I am capable, that tragedy from a spectacular pioneer flight should not be laid to the door of, or in any way, affect the progress of commercial aviation. Commercial aviation, as I have tried to point out, can today be made as safe as a railroad train. The pioneer risks his life to bring the unknown into the column of the known.

Endeavors Justifiable

I have always believed that no atter how hazardous an endeavor ay be, it is justifiable when the d sought is human knowledge and gmented progress. Where would e be today if there had not been neers in the past who launched t into the unknown?

When my Grandmother Byrd was ld of our proposed flight toward the North Pole she vigorously opposed it. She was 87 years old at the time, but had kept unimpaired an unusual keenness of mind. "What are you going to do with the North Pole when you get it?" she said.

I could not answer her. She saw eye to eye with thousands of our thinking citizens. Now that the flight is over she admits as do, I , many of those citizens, that rhaps there was after all some ason for making our flight, ough I doubt if they could define at reason.

But she was delighted with our success and says it was written that the flight should have been made, for did not my great-great-great-grandfather prophecy that a Byrd would some day find the North Pole.

However, she was not the only one who expressed herself in no uncertain terms about our proposed exploit. At a formal dinner one night in Washington, a prominent young matron told me that she not only did not see any reason for flying in the "terrible Arctic" but she thought a man with relatives and responsibilities was thoroughly wicked and thoughtless to expose himself to such dangers. "Think," she said, "of the terrible anxiety he gives to his friends and relatives!"

No Thoughtlessness

The wickedness had to be admitted, but not the thoughtlessness, for one who deliberately takes risks must, if normal, worry considerably about the anxiety he causes and the chances he takes with others, future. That, I think, is much the hardest part of Arctic flying.

We were rebuked by young wives who thought, it appeared, that we were setting their husbands a bad example. Of course, some of us have a great confidence in aircraft, and less dread than most people of the Arctic. However, that may be, an Arctic flier who has responsibilities feels more like a selfish sinner than an explorer going forth to conquer.

Another acquaintance who had been approached for a donation, said: "I won't be guilty of subscribing a cent to your expedition before you go, to help you break your neck up there, but if you must go I'll help salvage the wreckage when you get back."

He did not say "help you salvage the wreckage," and it occurred to me then, as I found out after our return, that he never expected to see me again. His was a good sporting proposition, but his attitude was typical of that of many people.

"Why," said another friend, "if you crack your machine up in your trial flights, as you are very likely to do, and so end your expedition before you get started, you will not only be a bankrupt, but you will make of yourself the world's greatest monkey!"

Urge to Explore

With all these powerful objections on one side, there must be something very strong indeed to outweigh them—to take a man on these pioneer flights in spite of them. What is the answer?—or is there no answer? Let us see.

We speak of our civilization as artificial, to distinguish it from life that exists in a state of wild nature, where animal eats animal and the struggle is for existence instead of for pleasure, where nature's favorites are the "strong and the swift."

But civilization is just as much a product of the cosmical processes as is the beehive or the anthill, or the mountains and valleys. And the growth of civilization is as natural as the growth of a tree. We are just another product of the cosmos—the highest product we are taught to think—and so it would seem that we are subject to the laws that are immutable and that govern the whole organic universe.

I cannot think then that our normal long-run tendencies, instincts, and urges are the results of blind chance, and so it would seem that they have their meaning—are part of the scheme of things. Civilized man's strongest and most prevalent instincts and desires appear to be for life and happiness. Primeval man had a great struggle for life alone. Civilized man finds easy the struggle for existence. His great struggle is for pleasures over and above his effort from mere existence. Anyone could understand an act that would manifestly make for one of these two things.

Not so easily understood therefore are the urges to explore or to risk life for science. I am not prepared to say how prevalent these urges are, but it would seem reasonable to suppose that they are heeded only when they are very strong; for they must be so to compete with the instincts for life or pleasure. The race, however, from necessity produces some who have these urges and to them no explanation is needed as to why one will deliberately risk one's neck in a pioneer or stunt flight.

Bleriot's Flight

There are others who cannot understand the first thing about it; and perhaps no amount of discussion will convince them that such things are not entirely unnatural and useless. But these peoples' condemnation can be understood. For our view of life is too close not to seem made up somewhat of myriads of meaningless happenings that make the great procession of the race appear uncertain—disorderly—even chaotic.

The life of the individual is but an instant in that procession. How then could he be expected to know the meaning of all the great and small happenings that constitute that race's onward march? As is true with a great painting, too close a view will show a large number of meaningless dabs of color of different sizes and shapes, but from a distance those dabs together take on form and meaning.

So it is with hazardous pioneer flights. May we not suppose that they are happenings, however small, that assist the great procession of the race toward its goal—though the meaning of these movements may be inscrutable? They would have their place in a painting of that procession—a small place that would none the less be a necessary part of the picture.

Let us analyze then a few well-known flights in their relationship to the processes of progress, to find out how they fit.

When aviation was still a child—19 years ago—Bleriot hopped off from near Calais, France, for a flight across the English Channel, and landed 23 minutes later near Dover, England, having flown the then remarkable distance of 21 miles. He used a monoplane with a wing spread of about 20 feet and a 25 horsepower motor.

Bleriot made his flight without a watch or compass, got into a mist over the Channel, but emerged and crashed upon landing. Shortly before Bleriot's hop, another Frenchman, Hubert Latham, tried the Channel flight, but fell midway and was rescued.

World Astonished

Bleriot's flight electrified the world and did much to attract attention to aviation, of which so many were skeptical. Now the channel is crossed daily by passenger planes. Who can say that Bleriot's great feat did not hasten and help the initiation of these regular trans-channel flights? Did not the interest he aroused draw men to aviation and make it easier for those men to finance their projects?

Next let us consider the Navy N. C. boat trans-Atlantic expedition when the N. C.-4 made the first successful trans-Atlantic flight which I have already described.

In preparation for the flight the Navy did some very intensive work. The proposed expedition captured the imagination of the officers and employes of the bureaus concerned and some of them worked day and night with an enthusiasm and energy that no ordinary project could have called forth.

Routine and red tape were cut, and rules were broken, with the result that much was accomplished and some things were learned and developments made, that probably could not have been done without some similarly strong interest. In fact, the drift-indicator used, a difficult instrument to machine, was made by the Naval Gun Factory. Ordinarily it would have been entirely out of order for the Gun Factory to make a navigational instrument that the Bureau of Navigation would be responsible for.

Lives would probably depend upon the performance of the engines during the flight, and so something was learned of motor safety, precautions and reliability. It was necessary that the planes should not run out of gas between bases, accurate data was obtained relat to the cruising radius of large flying boats.

Commander Towers' experience on the rough seas in the NC-3 was valuable in that something was obtained relative to the cruising radius of large flying boats.

The NC flight was the first where long-distance out-of-sight-of-land navigation was necessary and several new navigational instruments had to be developed—the old story of necessity.

Two of these instruments, the most essential navigational apparatus—the artificial-horizon sextant and the wind and drift indicator—are now, nine years later, standard equipment in the Navy. Even the war did not bring about the necessity for developing the artificial-horizon sextant for airplanes.

Another benefit resulted. The success of that flight brought to the side of aviation the Navy's new child, many of the older officers who had looked askance at it. It contributed to the formation of the Bureau of Aeronautics in the Navy Department.

MAN AND WIFE BIGAMISTS, GET YEAR

Sea breezes fanned the spark of love kindled when John J. Halliday and Mrs. Mary Magown met aboard ship, returning from a visit to Ireland, last spring. They were married March 16, last, by Justice of the Peace John Tomlinson, of Millvale, and went to live in Carrick.

Today in Criminal Court they pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy and each was sentenced to serve a year in jail by Judge Elder W. Marshall. They have been ordered deported, it was stated by County Detective J. E. Weber, who appeared as a prosecuting witness.

Edward Magown, of Danville, Pa., husband of the woman, was in court, but did not testify.

Detective Weber told the story. He said Halliday, who has a wife in Ireland, was returning to this country after a visit when he met Mrs. Magowan on the boat and upon their arival in Pittsburgh they were married.

AUTO COMPANY CHANGES NAME

The firm name of Whitehill-Gleason Motors, Inc., Hupmobile distributors in this district for many years, has been changed to H. F. Gleason Motors, Inc., an announcement by H. F. Gleason, president, states. Gleason Motors will continue in the distribution of Hupmobile cars, new models of which will be presented to the motoring public this week-end. In connection with the announcement of the change in the firm name, Mr. Gleason also announced that C. S. Miller, wholesale manager, has been made secretary and a member of the board of directors of the new organization.

"MUSH" O'HARA EXONERATED

Martin "Mush" O'Hara, 28, of Amity street, Homestead, a former prize fighter, was exonerated of robbery charges following a hearing by Alderman Sol S. Goldstein of Squirrel Hill, last night. Robert Liebert, of Osceola street, who made information against O'Hara, dropped the charges and admitted that he didn't know how his watch was lost during a scuffle between the two. O'Hara said that nothing more than a fight had occurred following a near-collision of automobiles.

FREED AS DOPE SUSPECT

Arthur Hahn, 37, of Keystone street, was not involved in dope sales, it developed yesterday when city and federal authorities released the man, who had been taken in a round-up of dope ring suspects. Hahn was arrested with Ray Mandrier, of Magnolia street, and at the time of apprehension it was stated that he had aided police to trap John Freeman, of Tustin street, a statement they denied yesterday.

Weather Conditions.

High pressure continues over the Southeast and a high has developed over the Northwest. Low pressure stretches from north of the lakes southwestward over the Plains states to Mexico. While showers and thunderstorms occurred throughout this low pressure belt, there appears to be a center of disturbance over Nebraska, where the lowest barometer is 29.72 inches.

Showers were also quite general throughout the Ohio valley and eastward to the coast during yesterday, but the skies are generally clear over that section this morning.

The temperature changes were slight.

River Conditions.

There was a slight rise in the lower Allegheny River, the Youghiogheny, the Ohio and nearly 2 feet rise in the Monongahela. Stage at Pittsburgh is 11.7 feet; Dam No. 3, 8.4, and Dam No. 6, 8.6 feet. The dams are up. The Ohio river will change but little.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Pittsburgh Resembles Deserted Village as August Exodus to Summer Resorts Gets Under Way

WE MAY have thought that Pittsburgh was a deserted village during July, but now with the early days of August we have come to the time when everybody with the price of a railroad ticket or 10 gallons of gasoline is going away just as far as either will take him. It may be the Atlantic coast, it may be a western ranch, Canada, or the eastern mountains—or it may be one of our own nearby lakes—wherever it is, Pittsburgh is well represented during this warmest month of summer.

One of the most popular mountain resorts is Bretton Woods up in the White Mountains of New Hampshire, and year after year the same people are attracted to its beauties, augmented by a few who are visiting the place for the first time. The Daniel M. Clemsons, of Fifth avenue, for instance, go up to Bretton Woods every summer, and I understand that they arrived there yesterday for their annual visit. They stop at the Mount Washington while they are there.

Among some of the others in the Pittsburgh colony are Mrs. Alfred E. Hunt, Mrs. William C. King, Mrs. Thomas McCutcheon and Mrs. Clinton S. Fisher, all of whom are at the Mountain View House at Whitefield. They all motored to Randolph this week to spend a day at the Ravine House. Mrs. Hunt and Mrs. King are among the most active hostesses at Whitefield, where members of the Pittsburgh colony have many bridge parties followed by teas.

The C. W. Ridingers are also at Bretton Woods, spending their time at Crawford Notch. They were seen in the gallery at the White Mountain tennis championship games this week, I hear. And the F. R. Murdocks also are at the Woods, stopping at the Forest Hills Hotel in Franconia. They have been making an extensive tour by omnibus from Pittsburgh through the Eastern resorts.

A majority of Pittsburghers though, seem to prefer the seashore during the summer months. The Stephen Stones, of Forbes street, are at The Gables at Hyannisport, and their daughter, Marian, is, of course, with them. Within a few days another daughter, Mrs. J. Shirley Austin, of Dalzell place, and her baby, are going up to join them. Also at the seashore are the Allison R. Maxwells, of Bennington avenue, and their family. They are staying in Atlantic City all during the summer.

Among others who have left the city are the Edward Vose Babcocks, of Ellsworth avenue. They are out at their summer place, "Vosemary," near Valencia, and they have with them their daughter, Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Jr., the former Dorothy Babcock, and Dorothy's young baby, Mary Arnold Fisher. You know, of course, that the baby is named for Mrs. Babcock.

ONE of August's few parties is the informal luncheon which Mrs. John Bonner Semple is giving today at her home in Linden avenue, Sewickley. Mrs. Semple has as her honor guest Miss Mary Robinson, of Lexington, Ky., who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Henry Oliver, of Woodland road, Edgeworth, and Miss Carrie Lee Hathaway, of Lexington, who came to the Valley with Miss Robinson and is also staying with Mrs. Oliver.

THE marriage of Miss Selma K. Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William George Mason, of Blackburn road, Sewickley Heights, and Edward J. Benke, of Pittsburgh and Sewickley Heights, was solemnized last Saturday night at 6 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. Alleyne C. Howell, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Sewickley. A reception in the Park Place Hotel followed the ceremony. After a motor trip in Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Benke will be at home in Maple avenue, Sewickley.

MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH S. THOMAS, of Espy avenue, Dormont, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Isabelle Frances Thomas, to Edward Powell Geary, son of Mr. Martha Geary, of North Negley avenue.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD G. MUELLER, of North Highland avenue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ruth Edna Mueller, and Stanley J. Roush, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley L. Roush, of Gettysburg street.

THE wedding of Miss Florence Mae Sample, of East street, North Side, and the Rev. Harvey M. Erb, of the North Side, took place Tuesday night in St. Mark's Lutheran Church, of which Mr. Erb is pastor, with the Rev. Dr. Alonzo J. Turkle, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, officiating. Mrs. Edward C. Nied was matron of honor and Miss Grace Sample, bridesmaid, while Mr. Erb's attendants were Edward C. Nied and Allan Croft. A reception followed the ceremony in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nied in East Ohio street. Mr. and Mrs. Erb are traveling in the East.

MISS MARY LOUISE HOGE and Miss Dorothy Klingensmith entertained at a bridge luncheon at McCreery's Monday to announce the dates on which Miss Anna Schaab and Miss Christine Cooper will marry. Miss Schaab has named September 1 as the date for her marriage to Andrew Donaldson Robb, and Miss Hooper has named September 5 for her marriage to Charles Noll. Five tables were in play yesterday.

THE first boat excursion of the Little Flower Club of McKeesport will be held Friday night, August 10, on the steamer Julia Belle Swain. Miss Lillian Hope, of Clairton, is general chairman, with James Rice in charge of dancing; Miss Margaret Cusick, euchre; Miss Estelle Petty and Miss Lillian Hickey, "500;" Miss Mae Bonner, bridge; Miss Mary Wilson and Edward Stelle, reception, and James Quinn, door.

MRS. MARIE SLACK is chairman for the card party to be held next Wednesday night in the North Side Malta Temple by Mosaic Chapter No. 50, Order of the Eastern Star.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the marriage of Mrs. Mary Jones Byrne, of Whitney avenue, Wilkinsburg, and Albert J. Dawson, of the King Edward apartments which was solemnized last night at 8 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Byrne's daughter, Mrs. G. A. Tetley, in Lakewood, Cleveland, by the Rev. Walter Scott Cook, pastor of the Lakewood Christian Church. Only the immediate families were in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Dawson will take a trip to Cape Cod and Bar Harbor, Me., and after October 1 will be at home in Hill avenue, Wilkinsburg.

Miss America Wallace has just returned from a year in France and a brief sojourn in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Mrs. E. B. Heyser and her young daughter will go to Chautauqua for music week.

Mrs. Joseph Drake is planning to go to Atlantic City.

After spending some time in Kalamazoo, Mich., Mrs. Carl D. Bushnell has returned.

Mrs. Margaret V. Rott, Mrs. Virginia Schuchman and Miss Elsie Schuchman are at Onomae, Arch, Hawaii. They expect to return home in September.

Enjoying the bathing and golf at Geneva-on-the-Lake are Mrs. James H. Field and her family.

THE literary and arts department of the Woman's Club of Aspinwall will be in charge of a series of entertainments to be given this fall.

Three lectures will be given by Dr. Edward Howard Griggs on September 28, October 19, and November 2. On October 26 Miss Viola V. Vincent will give a dramatized Mosaic song and story in costume.

Mrs. Franklin E. Sturgeon, Mrs. Thomas J. Ford, Mrs. D. H. Millican, and Mrs. D. J. Evans form the ticket committee.

THE Congress clubhouse has been the scene of several entertainments lately, given by club members and social clubs.

The Girls' Club of the Potter Title and Trust Company gave a luncheon Saturday in honor of Miss Marion Devlin, who will marry Norman Braum.

Miss Helen Wilson, of Sheraden, entertained a group of friends at a bridge luncheon at the clubhouse Saturday afternoon.

For your breakfast and your better health
Of course, most people eat Heinz Rice Flakes for breakfast because of their crunchy goodness and their delicate, nut-like flavor.
But there is another, equally inviting, equally important reason for eating these delightful flakes of rice.
This reason is the better health, the Joy of Living, which Heinz Rice Flakes help to promote.
For, by a special, patented Heinz process, Heinz Rice Flakes are naturally "laxatized". This unique process utilizes the natural roughage of the rice itself in such a way as to impart to Heinz Rice Flakes a mild laxative quality, enabling them to assist Nature in keeping you "fit as a fiddle".

PENNSY ORDERS 550 STEEL FOOD CARS

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania Railroad has announced that orders have been placed for 550 all-steel refrigerator cars of new design. These cars will be adapted especially for operation in passenger trains or in express trains operating on passenger schedules.

The order, amounting to approximately $5,000,000, was divided among four companies as follows: American Car and Foundry Co., 200 cars; Pressed Steel Car Co., 200 cars; Pullman Car and Manufacturing Corporation, 100 cars, and the General American Car Company, 50 cars.

The company said the new order was a further step in its program, now approaching completion, to retire wooden cars from all regular passenger train service and from trains operated on passenger schedules.

In January, the company placed orders for 629 new steel passenger train cars, representing an expenditure of approximately $15,000,000. Delivery of this equipment, which will start the latter part of this year, will make possible the retirement of the last wooden passenger car from regular steam service on the system.

GRANDMOTHER FOILS FLAMES

Picking up a burning basket of paper, which her grandson, John Schinneller, 5, had ignited in their home, 648 South Main street, West End, Mrs. Margaret Schinneller, 80, dashed into the bathroom and extinguished the flames in a tub of water last night.

Her prompt action saver the child from injury. Neighbors saw smoke issuing from the home and summoned firemen, but Mrs. Schinneller had extinguished the flames before they arrived. Her son, William C. Schenneller and wife were absent. The boy had been playing with matches.

CHAIN STORE LOOTED OF CASH AND CIGARETS

Thieves cut a pane of glass from a window in the rear of an Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company store at 2339 Wylie avenue, last night, and after entering took $25 from a cash register and merchandise and cigarets valued at $150. E. W. Hudder, manager, discovered the robbery when he opened the store this morning.

TWO GIFTS BOOST ICE FUND, STILL SHORT, OVER $1,201

With $1.85 to spare, The Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund topped the $1,200 mark today, and is soaring on its way upward.

It is a joy to watch the fund grow, but it is still $400 behind the total of August 2 last summer. Perhaps it is due to the unusually cool and rainy June and the none too pleasant July. For the sake of the babies, let's hope that August will prove to be even more successful than it was last year.

Two groups of children have given today's contributions to the fund. One amounts to $5.24, and is donated by the little folks of the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, who have been saving their pennies to help the babies. The other gift is $2.25 sent in by some children of West McIntyre avenue, North Side, who sold lemonade and fudge. The youngsters include Marion Plank, Louise Holmes, Jean Louise and Roy Haynes, Betty Wilson and Mary Jane Patton.

RETRACTS SWELL-HEAD BRAND ON LINDY

HALF WIVES by Winifred Van Duzer

Ione Is Thrilled as She Sees Show for First Time From Backstage

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ione Farr, just out of high school, gets a position in a music publishing house in New York to which she commutes from her home up the Hudson. Her chum, Marie Karey, is engaged to Palmer Elliott, a young lawyer. Ione loses her heart to Alan Blake, an accompanist for the Weimar concern. Marie holds up Ione's sister, Jenepher, as a model. Jenepher is married, has a small son, and also holds a fine position in a smart New York shop. Ione feels Jenepher's married life is not the romance it should be and that Timmy, the baby, suffers owing to his mother's absence; she feels a wife cannot make a success of marriage and hold a job at the same time; then she finds herself unconsciously drawing a picture of Alan Blake.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

BENZ dashed in and asked for Alan Blake; they called him away from the Russian chorus. So highbred; all sunny, laughing charm coming down the room. Ione felt the ripple that had caught her yesterday; waited with her face like a rose.

He marched over and took her arm. "This is going to be good! Listen! We'll go on—let the old fellows manage the best way they can. Ready?"

They raced ahead of Benz and Speed down the stairs; he helped her into the back seat of Papa Weimar's limousine standing at the curb and got in beside her, crowding her against the cushions.

"But you said I mustn't be crushed, Mr. Lanny—"

"And she thought he'd forgot? Indeed, then—" He slid his arm along her shoulders and began to sing "Only You," smiling down at her.

The chauffeur turned the car uptown; they stopped in a narrow street before a great, blank door. Ione realized it was a stage door. So new to her this was, so thrilling; she kept whispering: "I'll die—oh, truly, I'll die—"

But she followed Benz's giant shoulders out of the autumn sunshine into the gloom of a barnlike place all dashed with shadow and spaced with wierd things—part of a veranda, a small slice of tossing sea, an elegant throne that turned out to be only cardboard.

Alan watched her with glints in his eyes. Now he must shake her arm, point to a smoke-gray wall, whisper with a profound air, "Know what's out there? Faces! Yep—it's the back drop and the play's on the other side. Come around here—watch from the wings—"

The most ecstatic moment—ah, the high spot of her life! Standing there, just off stage, Lanny's arm at her back, watching the long blue finger of light reach down from a lofty darkness and pick out Ros, moving when he moved, holding him always in its center—romantic thing that he was.

Voice like running gold, it seemed to her, as he sang a serenade to someone on a little balcony. She threw her head back, closed her eyes, quivering with the beauty of it—felt the arm at her waist grow taut.

He whispered, "You're sweet, Io—well, but you're sweet—"

She gave him a vague smile, made a dreamy gesture toward the stage. "It's the music makes you say that, Mr. Lanny."

"You think so?" he said, through straightened lips. "Some time there'll be no music—no Tony Ros—only me and thee and a lot of solitude. You'll believe me then, sweet Ione?"

"Maybe! Look—it's over"—The song ended on a high, pleading note; the illusion of dripping moonbeams vanished as the stage sprang into brightness.

There was a piano back of the drop; now Alan spread out his score and kicked the bench under the keyboard; now Speed lighted another cigaret, plodding round and round.

Presently Ros was coming, talking earnestly with Benz; he shrugged, threw out his hands,

PITTSBURGH girls haven't gone in for the olive-tan complexion that is acquired in the East, notably in New York. The peaches-and-cream tradition stands up well here against a comparatively new order in the East which calls for almost a sallow skin, whose effect is heightened with a deep red paint for the lips.

Restaurants that are enjoying brisk business have dark nooks and crannies, soft lights and clouds of tobacco smoke ascending from the tables. The casual observer is struck by the fact that most of the smoke comes from young ladies' cigarets. At seeing a young girl of 16 puffing like a veteran the pessimist might shake his head, but he would stop abruptly if he considered that there are any number of boys who smoked first when they were 10 years old. The old man of 12 who had not pulled on a cornhusk or a two-for-a-cent cigaret in the days gone by was considered by playmates as one in his dotage.

IN ONLY a few of the offices downtown are girl employes permitted to smoke while on duty. None of the big concerns permit it. For that matter quite a few do not permit their male employes to smoke while on duty.

Prohibition has developed the middle-man bootlegger. He is simply an order taker. He never delivers. He solicits his customers as the candy men make their rounds. The higher type of middle men will deliver a laboratory analysis of the stuff before it is purchased. To doubt his word is to offend him so deeply that he will scratch you off his calling list. This new fashion order-taker drives around in a modest machine and does most of his soliciting between the hours of seven and nine in the evening.

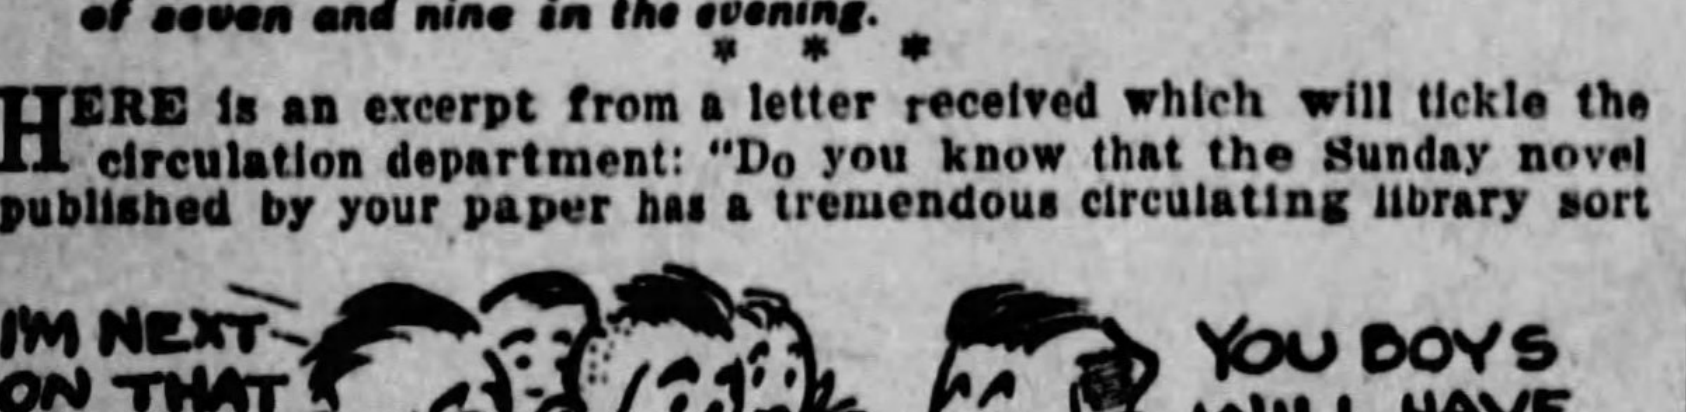
HERE is an excerpt from a letter received which will tickle the circulation department: "Do you know that the Sunday novel published by your paper has a tremendous circulating library sort of circulation. Every copy I have had is begged for. I work around the Courthouse and I don't believe there was an attorney, a detective or a policeman who did not read and praise the recent mystery novel your paper published."



I'M NEXT ON THAT NOVEL!

"You wrote," writes a correspondent, "of the old man who raids the waste cans of the city for newspapers. Do you remember Cyclone Kirkland? He was the pioneer waste can newsstand patron of the country. He was the man who predicted the Frisco earthquake, and was president of an organization he termed the Silent Brotherhood. He was constantly collecting old newspapers, reading them, and wrapping and sending them to hundreds of correspondents. Cyclone always omitted the slight detail of putting postage on his papers."

Spies report that the "talkies" which are rapidly supplanting the silent drama are going over big in Pittsburgh. However, there are certain peope who deplore the tendency to introduce talking into the movies. These people are deaf people. Until the movies came in they could never enjoy the theater. Now that the sub-titles are being eliminated in favor of dialogue the deaf people who found the movies a boon are once again disconsolate.

Cloudburst Damage Is $500,000

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Damage resulting from a cloudburst last night in West Middlesex, Farrell and Wheatland was estimated today at approximately $500,000. While service on the Pennsylvania Railroad continued uninterrupted today, trains on the New Castle branch of the Erie Railroad were rerouted over the Pennsylvania tracks.

The damage to farming land in the vicinity of West Middlesex was heavy. A number of cattle were reported drowned. Streets in Farrell were torn up by the heavy rain and flood. Houses in West Middlesex and Wheatland were flooded. The water rising to second floors in residences in lowland sections.

There were no casualties as a result of the storm. One woman was rescued at Wheatland when she was caught in a sudden flood in the back yard of her home. Neighbors pulled her out of the water that had risen to a depth of several feet.

"I want to congratulate you upon excellent showing made in free links tournament and hope that you and your colleagues on team continue excellent play and win championship. We are all for you."

TRAVELS OF GIRLS, 15, ENDED HERE BY POLICE

The travels of two petite 15-year-old Chicago girls ended abruptly this morning when they were routed from their berths in Pennsylvania Station by city detectives.

At the matron's department in Central Police Station, Anna Hawley, Chicago, and her chum, Elizabeth Rush, both of Greenwood avenue, said they were on their way to relatives of the former in Cresson.

"My mother got a little peeved at me yesterday and told me to pack up and get out," the Hawley girl told the detectives. "I got out and brought my chum along. We didn't intend to say at Cresson more than three or four days."

The detectives had received a description of the girls from Chicago police who asked that they be held as runaways. They will be detained pending further instructions.

DERAILED CAR JAMS TRAFFIC

Fifteen passengers were shaken up this morning when the trailer of an outbound Frankstown avenue street car split a switch at Frankstown avenue and Paulson street. The front trucks of the trailer left the tracks. Outbound trolley traffic in Frankstown avenue was delayed 25 minutes.

Ban Off Morgue Visits

Closing the chapel of the Allegheny County Morgue, where unidentified bodies are exposed to public view, has been all a mistake and the result of the misunderstanding of orders, according to Coroner W. J. McGregor. Hereafter, he says, it will be open at all hours when bodies are there to be identified.

During the last few weeks the chapel, with the other portions of the morgue building, have been closed at 4 p. m. and remained barred to the public until 9 a. m. next day. As a result there was complaint that many people seeking missing friends and relatives were kept in suspense in not having an opportunity immediately to view the bodies of the dead. It was declared also that there was no longer the opportunity for the identification of bodies by chance visitors.

The majority of persons looking for missing relatives, it was pointed out, found it difficult to visit the morgue except in the evening or the early hours of the morning. Persons coming from a distance were sometimes obliged to wait 12 to 15 hours before viewing bodies unless they called upon a deputy and obtained a private view.

MISUNDERSTOOD

Coroner McGregor declared he favored keeping the chapel open 24 hours a day as long as a body remains to be identified, but explained the exclusion of the public as the misinterpretation of an order issued by him for the closing of the operating rooms and administrative office in the building. This order had been issued, he said, when complaint reached him of the alleged misconduct of a man who since has been discharged from the service.

"I believe that the chapel should be open at all hours so long as a single body remains to be identified," said Coroner McGregor. "No bodies are unnecessarily exposed to view, and when all have been officially identified the chapel is closed. However, it shall be opened immediately, regardless of the hour of day or night, in the event that an unidentified body is brought in."

LAKE DROWNING PROBE ORDERED

With a view to protecting other children of the district from a similar fate, Coroner W. J. McGregor has ordered an investigation of the drowning in Silver Lake, Tuesday, of Simon A. Davis, 10, Negro, of 145 Julius street.

"Drain the lake or fence it," is demanded by parents of children in the Larimer avenue district, and by Ira Davis, of 552 Herron avenue, father of the drowned lad, who brand the pond a menace to children, according to Deputy Coroner John Danner.

The lake, popular among skaters in winter, is not open to bathing in summer, Danner says, but boys of the neighborhood fish or swim in it. The Davis lad was caught in logs while swimming.

Snow Falls As Mercury Dips In Montana

BUTTE, Mont., Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Overcoats were brought into use here last night when a rapid fall in temperature sent the mercury down to 41 degrees above. Snow fell on Mt. Powell, west of Anaconda.

CRITIC NOW BOOSTER FOR LONE EAGLE

AMARILLO, Tex., Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Peace has been declared between Col. Charles Lindbergh and Gene Howe, local newspaper publisher, who, three months ago, called the trans-Atlantic flier a "swell head."

Public apologies have been made by both principals, following the Colonel's brief visit here yesterday while en route from East Vaughn, N. M., to Kansas City.

Howe, son of Edgar A. Howe, "The Sage of Potato Hill," of Atchison, Kan., printed his apology, which closed with the statement that "Lindbergh is a scholar and a gentleman and hasn't the big head," while the Colonel admitted he might have been a bit curt in a former visit here, and harbored no ill will toward Howe or Amarillo. The men did not meet, however.

The editor launched his criticism when Lindbergh, during a brief visit here in the spring, spoke curtly to people standing near his airplane's propeller. Howe, in his column, "The Tactless Texan," also pilloried the air hero for passing up Amarillo's elaborate reception plans.

Lindbergh smiled when asked about the affair yesterday. "If Mr. Howe has forgotten the incident, I have, too," he said. "I may have brought it on myself by speaking too curtly to a group of men who went too close to the propeller of my ship."

Howe, advised of this, published the following:

"All I have to say in rebuttal is that Lindbergh certainly acted like a good fellow about it. It shows that he is wide and broad. If he were narrow and mean he could have acted real nasty.

"Lindbergh's explanation rings true. I'm only a country boy trying to get along, figuratively speaking, and Lindbergh is without question the best known and most sought after individual in the world. He certainly has acted magnanimously about me in his attitude and I appreciate it and I would be a sorry person if I didn't admit it.

"So, folks, I apologize to Col. Lindberg and will say that I was hasty and wrong in what I said. He is a scholar and a gentleman and hasn't the big head."

Will Rogers Says

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Aug. 2.

See where they are really stopping 'em selling booze in the night clubs in New York. That means that they just have to go out of business, for you can't look at those shows sober.

It's this woman Willebrandt that is doing all this, and she is a Republican. The Democrats will say that it is just a political move, but when you take away an out-of-town yap's booze it's more than politics. It comes under the heading of disaster.

For how is he going to tell the folks back home what a devil he was in New York if he can't buy some courage?

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

finally sat down, wagging his head.

Alan began to play then, grinning at her sidewise; Speed put his elbow on the back of a chair, leaned down so he was looking straight at the actor, and half talked, half sang "Only You:"

"There is a girl in Dundee,
There is a girl in Tralee—"

A rollicky melody, a piquant, eccentric rhythm—very captivating, Ione thought it. She saw a light slant down Ros' face, but there was a long and vehement argument about something they called the "split."

Ros made one of those flinging movements with his hands in the end, declared furiously, "It wouldn't stage—no picture in it——"

But she had seen it in her thoughts—a row of pictures—out there against the drop. Trembling with eagerness, she sprang up now, darted around the piano with her hands out.

"But—oh, listen! If they'd darken the stage and have the spotlight on you and have the girls—you know, the Scotch girl and the Irish and French girls and the others—if they'd have them all dim, sort of, as if you were dreaming them. And at the end the American girl—the 'Only You' girl—well, she could be real. And with your glorious voice, Mr. Ros——"

She stopped then, panic stricken—looked around. Benz and Speed and even Alan Blake stared. But Ros was coming toward her with his famous smile.

CHAPTER VII.

IT WAS all very simple. Ros disposed of their differences with a backward flirt of one shoulder; he spread his slim, brown hands, palm downward as if resting them on a great deal of money; he kept talking to Ione.

It was all very simple. Ros disposed of their differences with a backward flirt of one shoulder; he spread his slim, brown hands, palms downward, as if resting them on a great deal of money; he kept talking to Ione.

But she was frightened now, embarrassed by the attention she had drawn to herself. She wanted to apologize to Benz—ask if he were angry with her.

She had no chance. For now it was Benz who swung her into the car; Benz's arm was on her shoulders—not vibrant as Lanny's had been—just a friendly arm.

"So she put it over on the old timers! Tell you, Wolf, it's going to pay having one like her around. Not a million years old served up with a blue-eyed stare——"

She glanced down at her rather proudly. But her lips were shaking. "I didn't mean to be forward—truly You see— Well, he said there was no picture in it. Such a lovely song—"

Benz kept patting her arm, chuckling all the time. "Why, you saved the day for us! Wait till Weimar hears—he'll want to give you a medal. And why not? Ah—congratulations, fair one!"

They shook hands with her then, all very ceremoniously, and she was exultant when Benz took her to Papa Weimar.

"Here's the star plugger—." He talked and the old man kept nodding and saying "So?" Presently he offered his fat cushion of a hand, gravely, and called her "gnadiges Fraulein."

"He never forgets a thing," little Marie told her. "I'd not be surprised if he gave you some good chance. And you only come, as you might say."

She sighed, eyes big with admiration. "But why shouldn't you get along? You and Jenepher—something extra special you've got. Smarter than the rest of us."

"But Marie, love, this wasn't being smart. Just luck, that was all; it just happened."

"Don't fool yourself on that. Luck comes to people who are bright enough to make it. Me, I don't believe in things happening without a reason."

They rode home together, the two of them, giggling in a kindly way at Papa Weimar—talking with rapt excitement about Tony Ros—gossiping about Eddie Benz.

"He's one girls lose their hearts and heads to, Io. Connoisseur—takes his pick like a man choosing a gardenia, ready to drop it the minute it shows wear."

There was a little dancer, exotic thing with green eyes, who used to drive his car by the office afternoons. He seemed devoted, yet no one saw that he cared when she left New York. There was a society girl. And a girl accompanist over at the studios wore a wrist-watch, platinum and sapphires, a thing he'd be likely to buy. He was a man of 35 or so, who had never married, and who was in love with life.

"Who wouldn't be a little mad about Eddie Benz? Royal looking fellow, with his bold laugh and his knowing manner and the air of luxury he spreads. Makes you feel all pampered and queenly, a man like that."

"Why, Marie—you think Pal Elliott would like that?"

"Why shouldn't he? I'm satisfied with Pal. But I'm not going to refuse to see every other man in the world. A fifty-fifty marriage means more than just financial independence for the wife. It means independence in the matter of friends, too.

"I'm going to have my men friends, just as I've always done, and I expect Pal to have his women friends. And there'll never be a question asked of anybody!"

Ione pondered that, walking up the hill. Marie thought of keeping her job after she was married, partly because Jenepher had been so successful. But her ideas were beyond Jenepher's, who never dreamed of friendships Tim couldn't or wouldn't share.

And Jenepher's aim was not financial independence for herself; rather it was to see that her son and her home were better cared for than they might have been without her efforts.

So there were two reasons why wives went to wage-earning; one that they might be independent of their husbands; another that their husband might, in some degree, be dependent on them.

Perhaps there were still other reasons. . . .

She thought of that question again one day long afterward.

Now she was planning to stop at Jenepher's on the way home to tell her sister what had happened at the office today; to revel in it a little.

The front of the house was dark; she ran around and let herself in at the back door.

Soiled dishes in the sink, on the stove, under the stove; table set with a plate and saucerless cup on a newspaper; dish towels in a corner; pillar of black smoke rising from a skillet on the gas burner.

"Ho, Jen!" she called. Tim came out of the pantry, shuffling a bit, as if he were weary. He had tied an apron about his lanky figure, but it had slipped sidewise and hung over his hip with a rakish, comedy air.

"She's not back yet, Io. Say, do you put milk into an omelet? Darned if I can make 'em taste like anything. Hey, Timmy! Where's that kid now?"

He whirled about and his apron caught the oven door, giving him a quick jerk. A pair of eggs fell from his hand with a wet, splashy sound.

"Lordy, what Jen'll say! Well"—He stood there, looking so like a great, helpless child that Ione giggled. But her mouth pulled down when she lifted Timmy, soiled baby with one little foot bare and cold, and cuddled him in her arms.

"Sit down, Tim, for goodness' sake! Here, take this angel—I'm going to cook you something."

She put a cloth on the table, stirred an omelet and made fresh coffee. Once she glanced through the dining room door—saw him sitting with the boy asleep on his lap—shoulders slumped, head down, hands limp. Futile they looked someway, his hands.

He was all appreciation; rather pathetic in his thanks. The maid had gone early, he explained, and he felt sort of tired nights. Couldn't seem to get on to the knack of keeping Timmy out of mischief and getting grub together at the same time . . .

Ione cooked cereal for Timmy; she was feeding him when Jenepher came in brightly. "'Lo, folks! Was late anyway, so I thought I might as well eat downtown.

"How's his muddie's baby, then? Dirty face—ugh! What I'll ever do with him!"

Once after that Ione asked Marie what happens when a baby comes into a fifty-fifty marriage.

"The mother loses some of her independence, doesn't she, or does she?"

Marie shrugged.

CHAPTER VIII.

THERE was a long, white box on her desk the next morning. She opened it dubiously, thinking ti had been left for someone else. But no—an envelope was in the cord and her name on it, all quite plain.

Layers of tissue, glazed and green as ice—then a winding fragrance; yellow roses, a sheaf of them, glowing softly in the early light, all banked with candytuft and fern.

"Darlings — ah, Marie — look!" Romance touching her now, sending shivers of rapture over her. "Oh—the envelope!" She tore that open. "Antony Ros" was engraved on the card.

IT never pays to be sure of one's future. Unexpected changes come to the best regulated families. Many who were born with golden spoons in their mouths have ended by eating from broken china?

Daughters of rich fathers and wives of wealthy men have suddenly found themselves thrown upon the world utterly unprepared to earn their livings.

Women of leisure waste valuable time playing bridge, which would never earn them a cent.

It would be wise if they took a little of that time to learn some practical accomplishment which they could turn to in an unforeseen crisis.

Many outstanding successes in the business world are based on what was once just a hobby and pastime.

Veritzen Gathers Driftwood for Lillian

THERE was apparently nothing but his usual smooth smiling courtesy in Philip Veritzen's reception of Lillian's gibing invitation to renew his youth by gathering driftwood with her. But I was standing near enough to him to catch a glimpse of the tiny spark of resentment which flamed for an instant away back in his brillian dark eyes, and then vanished again. Although the great producer does not cheapen his dignity by aping the dress or mannerisms of extremely young men, I realized early in my acquaintance that he likes neither to remember that he has passed life's meridian, nor to be reminded of the fact.

To my surprise his poise was not proof against the temptation to return Lillian's thrust.

"Is that your reason for going?" he asked, smiling.

The little laugh which she gave him in answer was more malicious than any retort could have been.

"Of course," she said. "I never miss an opportunity of joining the gambols of youth."

"But suppose I prefer the society of the youngest person in the party," he returned, with a gallant little bow to Mother Graham.

My mother-in-law laughed, with a sprightly little wave of the hand at him.

"My dear man," she said, "you know all children should have a nap in the afternoon. I'm going to take mine now. Go on and gather driftwood or sea shells. I shall be perfectly all right."

"She will have a faithful companion at her feet," Katherine put in, smiling. "I have the first symptoms of a headache which will be all right if I coddle it, but which would spoil me for the party if I gathered driftwood in the sun. So I'm going to stretch out on the sand and rest.

"Otto!" Mr. Veritzen called quickly, and the man on his way back to the car turned obediently.

"Bring down the robe and the car pillows," he said, and the man nodded comprehendingly, touched his hat, and hurried to the car.

"Otto will see that you are perfectly comfortable," he said to Katherine. "And if you are sure you don't mind"—and he bowed deferentially to my mother-in-law.

"I shall be asleep before you're out of sight," she told him.

"In that case"—Mr. Veritzen caught Lillian's hand—"let us gather the driftwood while we may. Of course you are coming with us, Mrs. Graham?"

His manner was perfect in its gradation, the utmost deference to Mother Graham, the familiarity of years of comradeship with Lillian, and to me the perfect courtesy of social acquaintanceship which is not of long enough duration to be termed friendship. But I had the disturbing consciousness that his attitude toward me was for my mother-in-law's benefit alone, and resentfully observed the quirking of Lillian's lips which told me that she too was discounting his elaborate formality.

For awhile I could not fathom my friend's purpose in dragging my stately employer along the beach to pick up driftwood when there were already so many younger helpers engaged in the task. Then I remembered Lillian's gamin-like propensity for making things uncomfortable for some one who had incurred her displeasure. She was thoroughly annoyed at Philip Veritzen for what she considered his unwarrantable interference with the youthful idyll of his son and Mary Harrison, and not wishing to tax him with his offense, she had taken this abrurd way of punishing him without his guessinng that he was being disciplined.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

A DUAL program—the first half All-English, the second miscellaneous—will be heard in the concert by the Goldman Band to be broadcast tonight at 9 o'clock by WCAE.

The opening half—all-English—is introduced by Sir Edward Elgar's march, "Pomp and Circumstance," followed with excerpts from Gilbert and Sullivan operettas and including a group of old English folk songs and dances.

The second half contains Edwin Franko Goldman's own composition, "Central Park," describing the scene of his daily concerts. It will be played with the composer conducting. The same period contains Tschaikowsky's "Andante Cantabile," excerpts from Verdi's opera "La Traviata" and the "Pace, Pace, Mio Dio," by the same composer—the latter in its original manuscript form.

The Hoover Honeymooners finally set up housekeeping in "Our Bungalow of Dreams" and will joyously do their broadcasting from there during the Hoover program tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

An appropriate introduction to establish the proper atmosphere is found in the opening number by the Hoover Orchestra, "That Stolen Melody." The same group closes the broadcast with an orchestral composition, "Figaro," after such other high lights as a duet arrangement of Gershwin's "Chiquita," also sung by the Hoover Honeymooners and a saxophone solo, "Aileen," to be heard with orchestral accompaniment.

Other broadcasts are:

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

HIS DAILY DOLE

By L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

EVERY morning Howze kissed her husband goodbye; handed him two well-wrapped sandwiches; gave him 25 cents; kissed him again and watched him as he hurried off to work.

When they were first married, she had assumed the management of their finances and he had thought it a good joke. He admitted that he was a spendthrift and that a man never saves anything until he has a wife to take care of his money.

But now after two years of embarrassment, Henry Howze was getting tired of this daily dole. He often resolved to tell her that he intended spending his money to suit himself. But when it came to the point of making his announcement, her sweetness and her calm insistence always upset his program.

Week after week he brought his salary and laid it in her lap. Week after week, she watched their little bank account grow.

"We will soon have enough to make the first payment on a house," she exulted.

He tried to feel enthusiastic about that home-of-their-own; but somehow he couldn't feel but zest for anything—with never a dollar to spend. He couldn't go to lunch with the other fellows. He couldn't share of their small diversions. He was becoming an outsider and felt like an outcast.

One day he found that his salary had been raised. It was only five dollars a week; but five dollars meant freedom from the petty economies that were breaking his spirit and killing his joy.

That evening he rushed home to tell Adrian the good news.

"We will put it right in the bank," she stated, slipping her small, strong arms around his neck," and before you know it, we will be moving into our own home."

"There's no arguing with Adrian. It's just like fighting the mist," he muttered to himself.

So, Henry took his quarter and his sandwiches and went on to work, just as if he had never had any raise in salary.

Six months later he received an-another increase. This time he made up his mind to keep his business to himself.

During the weeks that followed Henry accepted his sandwiches and his quarter, every morning and went on to the office. He gave the sandwiches to the office boy and spent his quarter foolishly. He enjoyed feeling rich and reckless.

Before long he was lunching with his fellow-workers; joining in their little chance games and feeling more joyous than he had for many long and lonesome months.

So it happened that he was among those present when Philip Crittenden brought in the news of a big real estate development pending in the city.

"We can get an option on that property for a thousand dollars. Let's put up two hundred apiece and grab it before the big boys get it," he said.

The others agreed; but Henry was silent. Where on earth could he raise $200? He knew without asking that Adrian would never let him risk her precious savings. Besides that he did not want to risk it. This was a gamble. He might win; he might lose.

During the past few weeks he had regained his old courage and daring. He had gradually thrown off that thralldom which an empty pocket had placed upon him.

"All right, I'll put up one-fifth of that option money," he announced.

The next instant he was wondering if he had suddenly gone mad. But he had given his word; he would have to get that money, somehow.

And because necessity was driving him; and also because the bank considered him a good moral risk, he managed to borrow the money.

Luck favored Henry Howze and his friends. Before the 10 days' option expired they had re-sold the property at a profit of $15,000.

The first thing Henry thought of doing when he heard the wonderful news was to call Adrian and tell her. Then his face took on a grim smile.

"I won't tell her," he decided, "she will make me put it in the bank and I want to use that ten thousand."

One of those spectacular springtime boms followed the big deal. The five young men bought options or property and re-sold them until they cleaned up a nice little fortune.

Business connections called for social engagements. This thing of making money was raging in Henry's soul like a fever. He pushed aside everything that interfered with his success. In order to run with this money-making crowd he had to dress as they did. He could not take his expensive clothes home, and that's why he rented a room down town.

He began inventing excuses to Adrian. She began looking worried and forsaken. He almost laughed in her face when she handed him his sandwiches and his quarter; but he took them just the same.

One afternoon he telephoned that he was called out of the city and would not be home. Then on the heels of that message came a call from her old college chum, Maida Parker.

"I'm in the city for two days, en route home, and I'm at the Madison Hotel for the night," she said. "I want you to come stay with me."

Adrian was delighted and said so.

Shortly after she reached the hotel, Maida's telephone rang. It was her cousin Philip Crittenden calling to ask if she would like to go to the theater that evening.

"I have an old school friend with me," she answered, "We will both go, if you wish."

Then Maida turned around to say, "Phil is going to ask one of his friends to join us for the theater tonight and a little supper party afterwards. I'll lend you an evening gown. Come on, let's dress."

At 8 o'clock someone knocked on the door and in walked Philip Crittenden—and Henry Howze, resplendent in full dress.

Introductions followed. A smileless Henry bowed gravely to a colorless Adrian. But they were well-bred youngsters and quickly recovered their poise.

"The jokes on me, Henry," laughed the wife. "I prided myself that I was leaving you to your lonely fate, and now you have followed me. Spoiled my mad dissipation!"

Henry took his cue from her, and played his part manfully.

It was 3 a. m. before Henry Howze finished telling Adrian the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

"All the time I thought I was helping you," she sobbed in his arms, "and I was only standing in your way." Then suddenly she jerked away from him and sat up straight, "Henry Howze, what did you do with those sandwishes that I fixed up for you every day," she demanded.

Henry roared. "That's the only part of my secret that I refuse to divulge!" he answered. "But I'll tell you this much, I did not waste them."

Then he bent his lips close to her ear, "I'll tell you something else too. Now we can have that home-of-our-own that you have been wanting so long, sweetheart."

YOUTH WHO STOLE WOOL GIVEN 60-DAY SENTENCE

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 2.—Norval M. Gatten, 19, of West Alexander, who stole wool from his neighbors to secure spending money, was sentenced to 60 days in the county jail here by Judge J. Boyd Crumrine.

"Amazing—so many women must learn this from others"
—writes a Washington hostess

The embarrassment of this grave social offense is finally ended. This scientific sanitary pad is now treated by patented* process to end all offense.

WHERE smart women gather socially—or in business—even the most attractive are guilty of offending others at certain times. Yet they themselves, seldom realize it. When told, they become miserably self conscious. They try in vain to overcome the difficulty by make-shift methods. Now science offers safe and certain relief from this fear.

*Kotex now scientifically deodorizes

Millions of women have learned to depend on Kotex within the last ten years. It has brought them better health, greater peace-of-mind under trying conditions. Now comes an added advantage. Kotex chemists have discovered (and patented) a process that absolutely ends all odors. After several years of research the one remaining problem in connection with sanitary pads is solved!

No more bulky outlines

That awful feeling of being conspicuous because of the bulkiness of old-time methods is gone, too. Kotex pads are rounded and tapered so there is no evidence of sanitary protection when worn. You may add or remove layers of filler, as needed—a thing all women appreciate. There is a new softness, because both filler and gauze have been specially treated. Finally, Kotex is so easy to dispose of, eliminating all need of laundering.

Buy a box today, at any drug, dry goods or department store. 45c for a box of twelve. Supplied also, in rest room vending cabinets.

*Kotex is the only sanitary pad that deodorizes by a patented process. (Patent No. 1,670,587, granted May 22, 1928)

Deodorizes . . . and 4 other important features:

1—Softer gauze ends chafing; pliable filler absorbs as no other substance can;

2—Corners are rounded and tapered; no evidence of sanitary protection under any gown;

3—Deodorizes—safely, thoroughly, by a new and exclusive patented process;

4—Adjust it to your needs; filler may be made thinner, thicker, narrower as required;

and

5—It is easily disposed of; no unpleasant laundry

Few Tribes Still Practice Cannibalism

IN New Guinea and Central Africa there are still a few tribes which practice cannibalism. Formerly the Maoris of New Zealand and the Fiji Islanders were cannibals, but they relinquished the practice many years ago.

LINETTE LOOKS FOR LOVE. AT PARTIES.
ON THE FARM.
ON THE SEA.
ON THE MOUNTAIN-TOP.
HOME.
AND FINDS HIM ON HER OWN DOOR STEP
1.9.2.8.

THE Wild-goose being LOVE. The difference between the two feathered rovers being that you never, no matter how long you spend in the quest—find the one who says "Kehonka" on your own doorstep when you return. You do with the one who is more yearned after and the better known of the two.

Linette was a little sister to all rovers. Meaning a human. Meaning that we all are guilty of the zest for the thing, the Lady-Beauty, the lusty Gentleman-Adventure, or the divine Baby-Love, the thing just over the horizon. For my part, I think it often saves us from knowing that we are walking in a mud-puddle and that the going is rough, to look at the luminous, glowing sky-world that spreads above the horizon, to hitch our wagon, our dream-wagon, to the star that trembles there, glitteringly pointing the way to the thing we cannot see, the place we do not know, the beauty we haven't got, the things that we may have!

But sometimes, of course, we stumble over a diamond, looking at a star. Linette did. She looked around the whole world for Love. Under every stock and stone; whatever a stock is. She searched for him among the dancing feet. She scanned the fields of the farm. She looked for him in the wild, wild waves of the dark blue, roaring ocean. She climbed the giddy mountain-tops. And he wasn't there; or there; or there. The star was always ahead—and the magic light. And she followed it home and plumped her suit-cases down on her own doorstep. She planted her two little heels, "click!" She wagged her head, and bigged up her eyes! For there the wild-goose was, standing demurely on her own doorstep!

And what he said was: "Were you looking for me? I live just around the corner."

Sometimes Beauty, Adventure, Love—they all are in front of you for the stepping upon. But it's human nature to see no divine light in the things around us; UNLESS you have the gift. And half the joy of the world is Wild-Goose Chasing, or the dreaming of doing it. —NELL BRINKLEY.

Meditations of a Married Woman

By HELEN ROWLAND

LOVE AND LEVITY

HEIGH-HO! In just a few short years, marriage has changed from a Gordian Knot to a slip-knot!

* * *

The kiss of a woman, like the life of a hero, can last just a little too long.

* * *

No man is in love who is not certain of it. When a man is really in love he KNOWS it, precisely as he knows when he is really starving, really drowning, or really being run over by a taxicab.

HELEN ROWLAND

Singed wings may grow again, but a singed soul is the parched ground left by burned-out emotions, seared faith and withered illusions.

* * *

It takes three strokes of luck to get a good husband; first, the luck to find one in a world of egoists; second, the luck to choose one out of a world full of sheiks; and third, the luck to make him choose YOU out of a world full of vamps.

* * *

Somehow, it is nearly always an empty-headed woman who starts a fool fad or invents a freak fashion that all the brilliant and intelligent women rush to follow.

* * *

The saddest result of all this petting is that, some day, men and women will be so fed up with kissing that one of life's sweetest pastimes will be cast into the discard along with mahjong and ping pong.

* * *

Many a scoundrel has lived down his crime; but once the world gets its little joke on him, not even a hero can live down its ridicule.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Friday, August 3.

THE stellar mutations favor a day of large operations and observed bold initiative with possible government or public negotiations. New projects in connection with combines, mergers or secret agreements are in order, and these should thrive in spite of a trifling delay and if a degree of wariness against some slight fraud or misrepresentation be observed. It is time for punishing such affairs.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year of large and important projects, perhaps of a government affiliation or in connection with mergers, combines or "rings," or possibly secret orders. These should prosper with a modicum of precaution against fraud or deception.

A child born on this day may be skillful, ingenious and enterprising and should succeed in government employ or with large corporations.

The governing reason knows its own disposition and action and the Nature of what it act upon.—MARCUS AURELIUS.

New Navy Blue

Blithe and bright is the new navy blue, which is far lighter and brighter than the regulation color from which it derives its name. HOW TO KEEP WELL by Royal S. Copeland M.D.

U.S. Senator from New York

Many Obscure Ills Yield Up Secrets.

A CORRESPONDENT writes that he is unable to find out the cause of Hodgkin's disease. He has been told he is suffering from this disease, but the doctor does not tell the cause or assure him of recovery.

DR. COPELAND

Back in 1832 Hodgkin found a number of persons suffering from the same group of symptoms. He noticed enlargement of the lymph-glands, speedily followed by anemia. It was found, too, that this particular disease seemed more prevalent among males than females. He told the medical world about the ailment, and the disease was given the name Hodgkin's Disease.

Besides the symptoms I have mentioned, there are other and more acute symptoms. The tonsils become acutely infected, the glands in the neck swell and the spleen is greatly enlarged. In addition, there may be fever, and the skin turns dark, having a bronzed appearance. There may be boils and intense itching. As the disease progresses there are pain, cough and difficult breathing.

I have shown you the worst side of the picture.

Many times the onset of this disease is so gradual and the symptoms so slight that there may be doubt as to the true nature of the ailment. Examination of the blood and gland secretions is the usual method of determining for certain what is wrong. When the glands of the neck are alone enlarged and the swelling does not appear to progress rapidly, surgical excision will often prevent the spread of the infection to other glands.

The anemia may not always appear at once. In fact, the trouble progresses so slowly in some cases that by medical treatment and special care of the general health little change is noticed in the patient.

Fresh air, sunshine, good nourishing food, including plenty of milk, cream and eggs will help a lot.

Because you have been told you have Hodgkin's disease do not be discouraged. Every day new discoveries are made to promote the span of life, even in the so-called hopeless diseases.

To my mind, one of the satisfactory characteristics of this generation is the energy with which the scientists are dealing with disease. Many conditions now regarded as incurable will yield to research.

"It Just Happens"

says Edna Wallace Hopper, "that your shoulders, for convenience and custom's sake, are covered. And how fine the texture of their skin!

"Your face must be the harbor for innumerable specks of dust and soot, lashed by the wind — treated harshly day in and day out. So if you thoughtlessly attempt to cleanse it with soap and water, ugly, large pores, seamy roughness result.

"Your face is entitled to the best of care. It's even easier than the hit-or-miss method of washing, which places additional tax on an overburdened skin.

"My French liquid cleanser, which I call Facial Youth, goes to the depths of your pores, gently, actually removes the dirt and soothingly undoes the harm of the wind and dust. It has a fresh, clean scent and is by far the best method I know of to protect and cleanse the face. Get Edna Wallace Hopper's Facial Youth at any toilet counter, 75 cents."

Women are Learning the Right Way

Pimples on the face and other parts of the body are warnings from within. Sometimes they foretell eczema, boils and other skin disorders that burn like flames of fire.

IF you are unfortunate in having skin blemishes, pimples, boils, eczema, you owe it to yourself and friends to remove the cause. Nature will then provide the complexion which is so much desired.

Thousands have been enabled to free themselves of unsightly blemishes and painful skin annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the blood is nourished.

Red blood cells are Nature's way for building and sustaining the body.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there can be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful healthy women.

You know a clear skin comes from within. Correct the cause —through the blood—and pimples, boils, eczema and that sallow complexion will disappear.

S.S.S. is Nature's own tonic for restoring the appetite—building strength—and clearing the body of so-called skin troubles.

"I was troubled with pimples and blackheads. I took a course of S.S.S. It cleared my face and back. I think S.S.S. is wonderful. I have told many friends about S.S.S., and they are getting as much benefit as I did." Miss Ruth Gahm, 1134 Elden Ave., Los Angeles, Calif.

When love fades ... whose fault?

Strange, what little things so often kill romance. Careless little things! Unconscious slips that creep in to mar treasured illusions. So unsuspected, the guilty one rarely guesses the truth ... until it is too late.

He won her ... but not until he learned to overcome "B. O." (BODY ODOR)

AT FIRST, he alone was in love—she was coldly indifferent. He made all the advances—she merely tolerated him. At parties, she avoided him and devoted all her winsome charms to other men.

Naturally, he was bewildered. It hurt to think that the one girl he adored, didn't care for him.

Then one night a queer suspicion flashed across his mind. Body Odor—could that be the trouble? She was so dainty herself, she wouldn't be apt to excuse a fault like body odor. He'd have to be more careful—and make sure of himself.

He found out later that he guessed right about "B. O." They're engaged now. Of course, it took time to win her —"B. O." isn't easily forgiven.

Don't risk body odor!

Perhaps you're saying, "But I'm safe." Wait! Body odor is too treacherous a fault to take chances with.

We all have to perspire. Health demands it. Even on a cool day, our pores give off as much as a quart of odor-causing waste. We can't detect this unpleasantness ourselves. Our sense of smell becomes deadened to it. But others always notice it.

Keep pores purified

To avoid embarrassment—just wash and bathe regularly with Lifebuoy, the delightful toilet soap that purifies. Its refreshing and mild antiseptic lather deodorizes pores—giving bath-to-bath freshness and freedom from body odor.

So fine for the skin!

This same gentle, antiseptic Lifebuoy lather also purifies face pores—keeps complexions glowingly fresh and clear. Guards health, too—by removing germs.

You'll learn to love Lifebuoy's pleasant clean scent, which tells you it purifies, and which vanishes as you rinse. Use Lifebuoy a week and you'll use it for life. Get some today.

Norma Talmadge to Retire, According to Rumor Going The Rounds in Picture Town

By REGINA CREWE

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 2.

NOT much news today. So let's go in for rumors. Perhaps the most thrilling of these is the report that the beloved Norma Talmadge is about to retire from the screen. All the world will hope that this is not true. For since the days when Norma played hookey from Erasmus Hall High School in Brooklyn to work in picture for Vitagraph, she has been adored by millions of fans all around the world. The report follows that mentioned some time ago that Joseph M. Schenck, Norma's husband, and president of United Artists, will step down from his pedestal as a producer and dispose of his film interests to Douglas Fairbanks.

Rumor number two says that John Barrymore's first Warner Brothers squeakie will be a film version of "The Jest." And everyone who saw Lionel and John in this Italian play is hoping that this rumor is true. In Italy the play is a classic and is repeated at regular intervals. It is a little "strong meat" for American audiences, and it is said that it has been banned. But so were "Rain" and "The Green Hat." So, after being scrubbed up here and there, it would seem that "The Jest" may be suitably adapted for films. If it is done, Lionel will play the role of Neri, in which he made folks shudder in the play. And Dolores will be the girl who causes all the trouble, as girls usually do.

Coming to the third rumor, it is that George Arliss will do two pictures for Warners. And that the first of these will be a screen version of his celebrated play, "Old English." Arliss has appeared in the movies before. But, with the advent of the talking pictures, he should be more effective than ever before.

One authentic story is to the effect that Clive Brook has been taken out of the cast of "The Letter" and Paul Lucas substituted. But as soon as Evelyn Brent finishes in this one, she and Brook will be co-featured in "Tahiti Nights," which, of course, is a story of the South Seas.

Speaking of the South Seas reminds me that Monte Blue is all expectation regarding his Tahiti filmed picture, "White Shadows of the South Seas," which opens this week with sound in it. Monte has never seen it screened. He didn't find the South Seas so entrancing as they have been pictured, and when he returned to his wife and baby he was so fed up with the entire venture that he departed for Europe.

As I prophesied, Louise Fazenda is being booked in advance since she turned free-lance. The very day after she finishes up on the Fox lot in "Riley, the Cop," she will begin work in Corinne Griffith's picture, "Outcast." And Louise, who has been struttin' around in gingham gowns during her last few films, is to have a dress-up part. As I've said before, many a spoiled beauty of the cinema may envy Louise, for she'll be in pictures when they are out. She is the one character actress in Hollywood who is unmenaced by the competition which threatens all the rest. If it's a Fazenda role, no one can do it but Louise.

When Richard Barthelmess begins shooting on "Scarlet Seas" he will sail his trusty yacht to Catalina Island, which has been selected as the spot where the picture will be filmed. During his stay he will live aboard his boat. Which is what I call combining business with pleasure.

Metro has signed up a whole mess of stage stars for sound films. It was bound to come. But, while it is a break for the stage folk, they're going to have just as much grief doing pictures as the stars of the once silent drama experience in using their voices. Stage and screen are related, but each is very vitally different from the other. No less an authority than William De Mille insists that the movie business is beginning all over again. And that it will be necessary to evolve an entirely new technic for sound films. It will take a little from the stage and a little from the screen—and the rest will just be made up by a brand new crop of picture pioneers.

Al Jolson is all excited about his new picture. He's gone Hollywood to such an extent that he recently said, without a smile, that he doubted very much whether he'd appear in a stage play this year. And surely not until very late in the season. But meantime, Jimmy Gleason is working on "Mister Bones." And there are a couple of summer months yet before show time begins.

BEST IN PITTSBURGH THURSDAY, AUG TWENTY-ONE

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK SPORTS EDITOR

ON ALL hands, these days, we read about the "Olympiad" at Amsterdam. Our best writers are referring to the revival .of the classic Greek games in this manner, and they are all wrong. The competition is the Olympic Games and not the Olympiad. The word Olympiad means the interval of four years between each set of games.

Look it up in any dictionary. One that I have before me at the moment says:

"Olympic, pertaining to Olympia in Elis, where the Olympic games were celebrated. Also Olympian: the Olympic games of ancient Greece, celebrated every four years in honor of Zeus of Mt. Olympus."

And—

"Olympiad, in ancient Greece the interval (four years) between the celebration of the Olympic games; a system of chronology reckoning from the first Olympics, 776 B. C."

NOW that that is settled, a study of the Olympic events being staged at Amsterdam shows the United States hopelessly outclassed in the running and hurdling contests, with the defeat of Frank Wykoff in the 100-meter dash and Charley Paddock in the 200, Lloyd Hahn in the 800 meters and 1,500 meters, and Morgan Taylor in the hurdles. The 19-year-old Canadian lad, Percy Williams, who was a real "dark horse," has been the sensation of the games so far, scoring a sweep of the two short sprints. America's forces are as strong in the field events as they are weak on the cinderpath, however, and are well out in front in point-scoring and are likely to stay there. Scattered points in the track competition, along with big counters in the jumps and weight events, will pull Uncle Sam through—but the running events always are more spectacular than the field battles, and it is quite a blow to our pride to make such a sorry showing where a good one would be most impressive.

OUR three best champions in the ring, including the newly-retired Gene Tunney, are excellent boxers. The two others in the group are Tommy Loughran and Sammy Mandell. They are standouts in their classes.

Mickey Walker, the middleweight champion, who wasn't good enough to hold on to the welterweight title, is a fighter near the end of his string; Joe Dundee, the welterweight king, is as much a fighter as he is a boxer and is careful against whom he risks his title; Tony Canzoneri, the featherweight ruler, is a good mixer and recently took a pasting from Harry Blitman, the Philadelphia youngster, in a non-championship bout; Bud Taylor, the bantam king, is a 50-50 boxer and fighter and is about washed up, and Corp. Izzy Schwartz and Frankie Genaro, who jointly claim the flyweight championship, are veterans who are hanging on because they are better than ordinary boxers.

Tunney, Loughran and Mandell are the only ones who outclass their fields, and each depends on his boxing skill rather than a punch to make him supreme. That proves quite a case for boxing as opposed to fighting.

OY, SUCH a headache as John McGraw and the other Giant officials must suffer every time they think of the smart trade their club made last winter when it swapped poor Burleigh Grimes to innocent old Barney Dreyfuss for that scholarly chap, Vic Aldridge.

The records show that Burleigh will be gunning for his eighteenth victory of the season when he faces the Phrenzied Phils at Philadelphia today. He has pitched more innings than any other pitcher in the big show, having been in 29 games, all told. He has started 24 battles and finished 19 of them, of which total he has won 15. In addition, he has acted in a relief role on five occasions, winning two of these battles, losing one and being neither credited with victory nor charged with defeat in the other two. Of the five games in which

SPITBALL VETERAN TO FACE PHILS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—The Pirates have no particular quarrel with the peaceful Quakers of this city of Brotherly Love, but it will be a case of everybody for himself in the Baker Bowl for the remainder of the week. The two clubs today were set to open their series, a postponement being recorded yesterday. The fact that the Freebooters have won only half of their games on the present jaunt has not left a good flavor in camp, so if the Western Pennsylvanians can take it out on their brethren from this end of the state they will not pull their punches.

The slab assignment for yesterday stands for today so far as Donie Bush is concerned. The Duke of Burleigh will be the master of the hounds it is to be hoped. If Grimes is able to ride a winner today he will have achieved his eighteenth victory of the season. Burleigh has a good chance of being the first major leaguer to reach 20 successes.

MILLER PHILS' CHOICE

It seems to be in the books for Russell Miller, Columbus boy and International League graduate, to oppose Grimes. Miller is quite clever, in fact none of the Pirates are in the over confident mood. The Bushwackers can hardly afford to take things for granted when they have scarcely enough outfielders to go around. Moreover, the Quakers are always dangerous on their own little orchard as every visiting team will attest in capital letters.

The rest of yesterday was not annoying to the Buccos. The doubleheader arranged for Saturday may tax the club somewhat, but Bush appears to be fairly well fixed in a pitching way. If only his outfielders are able to stand the gaff the situation should not be too tough when the series ends.

The all around play of Fred Brickell is pleasing to the Pirate manager. With Pete Scott and Pooch Barnhart out for repairs, the Wichita whirlwind jumped in like a real performer. Only 21, Fred appears to need more experience in a defensive way. But on the offense he has been anything but a weak actor. Many of his drives carry the ring that is music to the ears of any manager.

Manager Bush spoke of a possible change in his lineup, but there will be no switches for today. Donie intends to play out every logical string in an effort to get the club into a consistent winning stride in the remaining weeks of the season.

MUST PLAY BALL

The shakeup threat still stands, however, and it behooves every one of the Pirate regulars to play heads-up baseball if they hope to remain in the lineup. The infield, which caused Bush to fret after the defeat suffered at the hands of the Braves in the closing struggle at Boston on Tuesday will be watched particularly by the little Pirate boss. With Bartell ready to jump into either the short or second base jobs at a moment's notice, Wright and Adams will have to be right on their toes.

YANK OARSMEN WIN THREE

SLOTEN, Holland, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—With the University of California eight-oared crew sweeping to impressive victory by eight lengths over Belgium and the Harvard four-oared combination with coxswain losing by a scant three feet to Germany, American oarsmen this afternoon wound up the first day of the Olympic rowing regatta with three races won and one lost.

The big California eight looked unbeatable in sweeping to easy victory over the Belgians in the remarkably fast time of 6 minutes, 21 1-5 seconds for the 2,000-meter course over the sluggish waters of the Sloten Canal. Harvard and the young crew that holds the championship of Germany waged a merry battle which ended with the American prow crossing the line only four-fifths of a second behind. The Harvard oarsmen still have a chance to win in their division as under the system in use here there will be a new draw and the losers will race among themselves tomorrow for the right to re-enter competition.

Their impressive victory strengthened the position of the oarsmen from the Golden Gate as joint favorites with the German and English entries for the Olympic crown.

The race with the Belgians was the first of several heats leading up to the final. The Germans also looked good today, beating France by two lengths.

Although they were never pressed, the Californians made fast time in their first appearance, covering the distance on the sluggish waters of the Sloten Canal in 6 minute 21 1-5 seconds.

"My Perfect Fight"—

GENE TUNNEY'S OWN STORY of his victory over Tom Heeney in his farewell bout—begins in Saturday's Sun-Telegraph.

THE name of Gene Tunney is on everybody's tongue these days, following his surprising announcement that he has retired from the ring as heavyweight champion of the world and that his fight with Tom Heeney last week in which he defended his title was his last stand.

Tunney regards this bout as his masterpiece, the "perfect fight," which worked out just as he had planned and trained for it. He has prepared a series of 10 signed articles describing it, the first of which will appear in Saturday's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

IN THIS analytical series, the retired champion tells how he conditioned himself for the battle, how his systematic blows brought Heeney to the point of collapse in the eleventh round, how his first punch, a terrific right to the jaw, brought the realization that he was facing a courageous, sturdy challenger who would have to be slowly and scientifically battered into submission, how he wanted to achieve a knockout victory in his final appearance in the ring, and all of the other highlights and sidelights of the bout.

This series, in many respects, is one of the best ever written about an important ring battle and no reader will want to miss a chapter of it. The articles will appear daily and Sunday until completed and will be published exclusively in Pittsburgh in this city's best sports pages, those of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Climate Too Tough, Robertson Says

By LAWSON ROBERTSON, Head Coach U. S. Olympic Team.

Sabin Carr

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 2.—Some explanation is needed of our complete failure so far in this Olympic in the track events. We have lost the 100, 200 and 800 meters races flat, the 110 and 400 meters hurdles, all of which we thought we had a fine chance of winning. I am looking forward to today's 400 meters with interest, but with no great confidence.

The sole explanation I can give at this stage is that the climate is entirely against our men, who cannot thrive in a city that stands below the sea level. The longer our men stay here the worse they seem to become. I am positive from my own technical observations that they were in better condition four or five days ago than any of them have been since.

Paddock's experience yesterday is typical of what has been happening. He did 200 meters Friday very comfortably in 21:04, yet yesterday, although he reported feeling fine, he found lead in his shoes just after the start and never looked like a winner.

CLIMATE POOR

All our other track men have done quite as well as expected in the preliminary heats and semis, but in the finals they have slipped back badly. The climate seems to be affecting our runners and hurdlers, but not our field men, who have performed fully up to expectations and have been winning their events.

I do not say this is the complete explanation of our disastrous track experience, but if it does not explain things in part, I do not know what does. Some of the German record holders have suffered from similar climatic disabilities.

Aside from this factor it is necessary to draw attention to the fact that other nations have produced men of unexpected class in the past four years. We have never had to compete in a finer international the Japanese Miki qualify in the field.

SLUGGER VS. BOXER AT McKEESPORT

DeMarco and Brignolia trade punches in the 10-round main bout in the Cycler Park outdoor ring, McKeesport, tonight. This is one of the few summer boxing attractions in the Pittsburgh district. Brignolia is renowned as a puncher and DeMarco will count on his superior boxing skill to pull him through the victor. They originally were to meet two weeks ago, but Cuddy was injured in a bout with Joey LaGrey and had to ask for an extension of time. Now they're set to go, with a strong preliminary card to back them up. Johnny Ryan, of Erie, stablemate of Brignolia, meets Ken Hargraves, Negro featherweight of New Kensington, in the semi-final; Allen Beatty and Jimmy Belmont, welterweight rivals, box the second bout and Mike Hogan and George Mareau are in the curtain-raiser.

"Did My Best, I'm Through," Paddock

By CHARLES PADDOCK.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 2.—The English claimed from the start of the Olympic games that Lord Burghley, Lowe and Atkinson would win. All came through as they predicted.

Sidney Atkinson yesterday outnosed Anderson, the University of Washington star, in the high hurdles, which he made in the time of 14 4-5. It was close race all the way, with the South African star always a nose ahead.

I arrived from the training quarters just in time to see this thrilling finish, for my individual competition is now finished, not only for this meet, but for all time.

I was eliminated in the first heat of the semi-finals of the 200-meters race by Williams, of Canada; Schuller, of Germany, and Rangeley, of England.

I did my best, but had nothing. Tuesday I felt right, but yesterday after 20 meters my legs were heavy and I couldn't pull on the track softened by rain.

I did my best, but it wasn't enough. I'm through.

In Big Battle Tonight

DEMPSEY INVITED HERE

JACK DEMPSEY, once more the "big shot" of the boxing game, now that Gene Tunney has retired and left the heavyweight championship open for competition, has been invited to come to Pittsburgh and participate in the annual police carnival at the Stadium, September 8. In a letter dispatched by Johnny McGarvey, former matchmaker at Motor Square Garden and for the big Milk and Ice Fund shows, to Leo P. Flynn, Dempsey's most recent manager, Dempsey has been asked to lend his presence to the big event, staged annually for the benefit of the police pension fund, and to either box three exhibition rounds or referee a few fights.

An answer is being awaited. Dempsey recently refereed a heavyweight bout in Detroit and attracted a huge crowd, and last Monday night he acted as announcer at a boxing show in Boston and the police reserves had to be called out to hold the mob in check. He unquestionably remains the greatest drawing card in the world of sport.

Jack and his wife, Estelle Taylor, are rehearsing for a show under the direction of David Belasco, which opens soon in New York, but it is believed he would be able to get away long enough to help along the local cause. In sending the invitation, McGarvey acted in behalf of Peter Walsh, superintendent of police.

HOOSIERS BUY BURRUS FROM BOSTON BRAVES

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 2.—(AP.)—Dick Burrus, first baseman for the Boston National League team in 1927 and who became a Brave utility player this season after George Sisler joined the team, has been purchased by the Indianapolis American Association team. It was believed the purchase price was as much as ever was paid for a player in the Association. Burrus will displace the veteran Walter Holke, who is nursing a lame knee. Burrus formerly played with the Columbus American Association team.

AMERICANS DEFEATED IN FOUR EVENTS

OLYMPIC STADIUM, AMSTERDAM, Aug. 2.—(AP.) — American athletes today experienced the most disastrous day of the Olympic track and field competitions thus far when they were unable to gain a single championship of the four decided.

Although the United States today added only five points to its lead in totals for the games thus far it still holds a commanding lead with 128½ points. Finland moved up to second place with points, displacing Britain which ha a total of 37 after today's events.

The 1,500-meter running crown went to Harry Larva of Finland with the only American who qualified for the final, Ray Conger, no better than tenth; the running hop, step and jump title to Mikio Oda of Japan with Levi Casey, United States veteran, second, and the 800-meter race for women to Frau Lina Radke of Germany with Florence MacDonald of Boston, lone American survivor, sixth; while all four of the United States javelin throwers were eliminated under a burst of remarkable performances by foreign stars.

BARBUTI SURVIVES

The one ray of sunshine came in the 400-meter trials in which Ray Barbuti, former Syracuse quarter-mile ace, won both his trial heats and as a result became a joint favorite with the German, Joachim Buchner, who also made sensational time, for the championship tomorrow.

Olympic championship in the javelin throw went to E. H. Lundquist of Sweden who replaced as champion Jonni Myrra of Finland.

Larva's victory reasserted the supremacy of the Finns at this distance, as this championship was one of the four won by Paavo Nurmi in 1924. It also marked another setback for the Americans in races on the flat.

PHILLIPS WINS FIRST

Today's program opened with the 400 meter flat trails. Herman Phillips of the Illinios A. C. captured the first heat in easy fashion, beating the Frenchman Dupont by two yards.

Phillips' time of 49 2-5 seconds was excellent on a track only partially dried out after yesterday's rain.

Emil Snider of the New York A C. easily won the second heat i which the only other starter wa Prinsen of Belgium. Snider, runnin the distance in 50 2-5 seconds, finished 30 meters ahead of his European rival.

Two favorites were victorious i the third and fourth heats. Ph Edwards, New York Universi Negro star competing for Canad on the third heat in 49 4-5 second The fourth went to Joachim Buc ner of Germany in 50 3-5 secon Ray Barbuti, former Syracuse around star, ran away with fifth heat in 49 4-5 seconds. B buti caught all of his opponents the last turn and won, eased up, 10 yards.

TIERNEY TRIUMPHS

The fourth of the 400-meter entries came safely through the first trials when Joe Tierney, the former Holy Cross star, won the tenth heat by five yards from W. A. Wilson, of Canada, 49 4-5 seconds.

Ridiculously slow time was made in the eighth heat in which J. Moralis, of Mexico, jogged around with J. S. Hall, of India, as the only other starter, both being assured a qualifying place, the Mexican breasted the tape first in 60 seconds flat. In similar fashion another Mexican, Iturbe, also qualified, finishing second and last in the ninth heat, without attempting to race with the winner, Barsi, of Hungary. A. Feger, of France, won the

he was lifted, the Pirates lost four and a relief pitcher pulled through with a Pirate victory in the other one.

AGAINST this sterling record, Aldridge has started 12 times and gone the route only twice, against the Pirates in New York, June 15, when he bested Carmen Hill, 9 to 1, allowing six hits, and in a six-inning tie. Of the 10 games in which he has been derricked for relief pitchers, he has won only two and lost four, the relief pitcher being the victor or loser in the other four. His two victories, aside from that over the Pirates, were scored at the expense of the Phillies. Twice he has appeared in relief roles himself, for which he has not been credited with victories nor charged with defeats.

Whereas Aldridge has won his only nine-inning game from the Pirates, Grimes has faced the Giants four times and carried off the verdict each time, pitching the full distance in each battle. The scores were 6-5, 6-0, 5-3 and 7-5.

It certainly is a crime how the smart managers and clubowners take advantage of our Mr. Dreyfuss when it comes to making trades! Sometimes they are able to go home in a barrel after talking business with him.

SOME unexpurgated comments on the retirement of Gene Tunney:

By Jack Dempsey—He made me what I am today; I hope he's satisfied.

By Tom Heeney—Why didn't he think of it sooner?

By Tommy Loughran—He's afraid to meet me.

By Jimmy Barry, referee of the long-count fight—This is a fine time for him to make up his mind to retire. He could have saved me a lot of grief if he had gone to sleep on a certain evening that I'll never forget.

By Tex Rickard — Now for the eliminations!

By the public — How long you gonna be away, Gene?

Local Star Wins Match

COBBS CREEK GOLF COURSE, PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—Carl Kauffmann, slender Pittsburgh stenographer, defending champion in the National Public Links tournament here, defeated Joe Kurek, Toledo star, by the decisive score of 9 and 7 in the first match play round today.

Joe Toth, of Cleveland, disposed of James McAuliffe, of Buffalo, brother of Ray McAuliffe, 1925 champion, by an 8 to 7 score. Toth took 40 to reach the turn but was six up on his opponent and then won the tenth and eleventh to close the match.

Robert Albertus, Philadelphia, was returned a * and 4 victor over Harry Velotta, of Cleveland. Albertus was 1 up at the turn and then won five consecutive holes to take the match.

Frank Invernizzi, of Baltimore, eliminated Thomas McGrattan, of Buffalo, 5 and 4.

Sam Graham, another Pittsburgh entrant and medalist in this year's tourney, was leading Louis Galby, Bridgeport, one up at the ninth hole.

C. J. Lunden, of Pittsburgh, who finished in a tie for fifth place among the qualifiers, was 3 down to Harold Cook, of Toledo, at the end of nine holes.

Frank Brokl, of St. Paul, who finished a stroke behind Graham in the medal test, was 3 up on Elliott Martin, 19-year-old Jacksonville star.

Graham, the medalist, went around yesterday in 74, within three strokes of par. It equalled the competitive record for the course and, added to Graham's 78 of the day before, gave him a combined total of 152. Graham nosed out Frank Brokl, of St. Paul, by a single stroke. Brokl took four putts on the seventeenth green.

Pittsburgh for the second consecutive year carried off the inter-city team championship, its four-man team amassing 648 points for two days' play in conjunction with the qualifying round. Philadelphia finished second with 649.

eleventh heat in 51 2-5 seconds with Arthur Green, of England, second, while the Chilean, V. Salinas, was third and last and was eliminated.

WIN SECOND HEATS

Ray Barbuti and Herman Phillips both won their second trial heats at 400 meters. Phillips won decisively in the first heat in 49 3-5 seconds with Krootoff of France in the second qualifying position. In capturing the second heat Barbuti won in the fastest time thus far, 48 4-5 seconds, easing up to finish two yards in front of W. A. Wilson of Canada.

Euil Snider, Alabama collegian, and one of the leading American hopes, faltered a few strides from the finish in the third heat of the 400-meter second trials and was eliminated, being beaten for the second qualifying position by a foot by the Frenchman, Feger. James Ball of Canada won the heat in 49 1-5.

Joe Tierney of the United States was eliminated when he finished fourth, badly beaten in the fifth 400-meter second trial heat. The American never got going and finished weakly while Phil Edwards, of Canada, broke the tape first with Broos of Holland second. Sean Lavan of Ireland also was ahead of Tierney. Edwards' time was 49 1-5.

The sixth and last 400-meter heat in the second trials was won by the German, Joachim Buchner, with Barsi of Hungary second in the sensational time of 48 3-5 seconds, the fastest of the afternoon, being 1-5 second better than Barbuti made.

JAVELIN RECORD FALLS

The Olympic javelin throw record was smashed in the first series of trials by E. H. Lundquist of Sweden who heaved the spear 218 feet, 6¼ inches. Charley Harlow, the American entrant from Los Angeles, failed to qualify. Lundquist's throw was only three-quarter of an inch short of the accepted world record.

The old Olympic record was 215 feet, 9¾ inches, set by Jonni Myrra of Finland at the Antwerp games in 1920, so that the Swede today beat the mark by 2 feet, 8¾ inches. The metrical equivalent of Lundquist's throw was 66.60 meters.

SCHMIDT IS WINNER

The fourteenth heat of the 400 meter first trials was won by Reinhold Schmidt of Germany, with Jackson of France second, in 50 seconds flat. The trials which qualified 30 runners for the second tests to be held later in the afternoon were completed with a heat won by J. W. J. Rinkel of Britain in 50 1-5.

The defending champion in the hop, step and jump, A. W. Winter of Australia, who also is the holder of the world's record, failed to qualify, being hampered by a bad knee.

Three of the four American entries in the hop, step and jump event also failed to qualify.

Fugazy, who will promote the bout. The scrap is scheduled for 10 rounds.

Canada Charges Favoritism in Olympics

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 2—(Canadian Press.)—Officials of the Canadian Olympic committee have become quite outspoken in their criticism of the management of the games and in charging that Canadians have been unfairly treated while United States athletes have been favored.

P. J. Mulqueen, president of the Canadian Olympic committee, said: "The Canadian Olympic officials have no quarrel with the American officials. One American official offensively played to the gallery, but we do not hold all American officials responsible for his conduct. The rough ride the Canadians have received in these games must necessarily raise the question of Canada's further participation in the Olympic games, this, notwithstanding the fact that Canada stands out athletically as a result of our success in the present games."

Many Concerns Make Debut As Payers of Dividends

By B. C. FORBES

SINCE January first, 223 initial dividends have been announced, contrasted with only 114 in the first seven months of last year, this column's exclusive compilation shows.

Another feature of this year's dividend record is an increase of 47 in extra disbursements: the total to date this year is 287, against 240 a year ago.

The total favorable dividend declarations this year has reached 712, compared with 588 in the first seven months of 1927. The net gain, you will notice, comes from the increase in newcomers.

JULY'S cheerful announcements reached 93, a gain of fully 50 per cent, but again newcomers accounted almost entirely for the improved showing. Last month brought 45 initial disbursements compared with only 16 last year. Both months brought the same number (11) of unfavorable declarations.

THE following table gives the monthly cheerful dividend announcements since the end of 1923:

Year.	'28.	'27.	'26.	'25.	'24.
January	111	89	87	69	78
February	98	81	72	64	49

December	..	205	184	147	104
Totals	..	1179	1025	811	621

THERE has been very notable change in the dividend actions of public utility companies this year as compared with last. In the first seven months of 1927 there were 70 dividend changes for the better, whereas there have been only 46 this year. Apparently utility operators are inclined to delay the starting of new dividends or the increase of present rates until the investigation now being conducted by the Federal Trade Commission is ended. The explanation certainly is not to be found in any falling off in utility earnings. The majority of companies are actually showing at least moderate gains.

THE form taken by the improved dividends declared by industrial, public utility and railway companies for the first seven months of this year and last year is brought out in these tables:

1928.	Ind.	P.U.	R.R.
Extra	267	9	11
Initial	205	18	2
Increased	82	10	5
Stock	58	10	0
Back	19	0	0
Resumed	16	1	1

Increased	77	19	6

Totals	497	70	21

IT IS perhaps significant that fewer companies that had suspended dividend disbursements have this year been able to resume payments. Also, fewer back dividends have been paid off this year. Does this suggest that it has now become harder for any concern, once it loses ground, to stage a vigorous recovery? More and more it is becoming true in the industrial and business world that victory goes to the strong.

WHAT are the dividend prospects for the remaining five months of the year?

Rather good. We may see an increase in dividend reductions and omissions but we are likely to see a fairly substantial gain in the number of enterprises able to accord their stockholders somewhat more generous dividend treatment. American directors have been following, on the whole, a sound dividnd policy. Very few boards have been tempted to strain their resources to make a dividend showing calculated to send up quotations for their shares. Nearly all oil companies unflinchingly faced the need for curtailing or stopping their payments when the industry was thrown into demoralization. By and by the good oil companies will be in a position to resume or restore disbursements. But this may not come in time to have any appreciable effect upon the record before 1929.

STOCK MARKET PRICES TURN REACTIONARY

NEW YORK, Aug. 2—(AP.)—Reactionary price movements in today's stock market reflected growing uneasiness over the credit situation. Operators for the advance endeavored to bring about a resumption of the advance by bidding up a selected list of oil, public utility, food and merchandising shares, but they encountered heavy offerings on all rallies. Trading showed a tendency to turn dull on the decline, indicating the absence of any extensive forced liquidation.

Call money renewed at 7 per cent and appeared to be in plentiful supply at that figure. Fears of a large increase in brokers' loans after the close of the market, coupled with the New York Federal Reserve Bank's reference to an "over-loaned" position in its monthly credit review tended to dampen bullish enthusiasm.

The special meeting of the New York Clearing House Association, called for the purpose of discussing the situation created by the unusually large loans on securities collateral by large corporations and other bank lenders, adjourned without making public its conclusions although a statement was promised for tomorrow. Wall street understands that an "important amendment" to the by-laws was adopted.

Special buying of the oil shares was based on the publication of an unusually favorable earnings report by the Atlantic Refining Company, by the improved statistical position of the industry and recent gasoline price advances, the latest being put into effect by the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky. Atlantic Refining soared more than 6 points to a new peak at 163 on talk of a 4 for 1 stock split-up, and Houston moved up 3½ points before selling pressure became effective against that group.

Indian Refining preferred broke 12 points, National Tea 9⅛, Radio 6⅝, Wright Aeronautical 6 and International Harvester, Montgomery Ward, Case Threshinng Machine, Dupont, Timken, Rossia Insurance and American Railways Express sold down 3 to nearly 6 points. Indian Motorcycle broke 6 points to a new low at 27.

Except for 2-point losses in Illinois Central and Rock Island, the rails showed good resistance to selling pressure.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The cotton market opened very steady today at an advance of 5 to 11 points, active months showing net gains of 10 to 13 points.

Traders gave little attention to relatively easy cables and a favorable weather map, but the demand tapered off on the advance and prices later eased under a renewal of liquidation, combined with local and southern selling.

A private report estimating the condition of the crop at 70.9, and placing the indicated yield at 15,106,000 bales, was probably a factor on the decline which extended to 19.43c for December. The general list showed net losses of 2 to 3 points at the end of the first hour.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(INS.)—Clearing house statement: Exchanges, $1,473,000,000; balances, $141,000,000; Federal Reserve Bank's credit balance, $126,000,000.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Street Nervous Over Money.

Another wide spurt in Atlantic Refining had the effect of steadying the market early this afternoon when the list was in the midst of a downward movement induced by fears of unfavorable developments in the money market. Observers refrained from making any predictions on what this afternoon's report on brokers' loans would show and there was considerable curiosity, but no definite information, as to what would take place at the meeting of the New York Clearing House Association today when the matter of lending money in the call market for account of "others" was scheduled for discussion. The Street was so nervous that it was even talking a raise in the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate when the bank's directors meet late today. Presence of Governor Roy A. Young, of the Federal Reserve Board, in New York, heightened these fears. American Locomotive's poor statement for the half year was seized upon as an excuse for trying to extend the downward movement, but as the unfavorable earnings had been expected the effort was fruitless. In fact, Locomotive earned the preferred dividend for the six months and had a few cents left for the common, which, in itself, was better than most observers had anticipated.

Locomotive's Earnings Shrink.

The American Locomotive Company reports consolidated net income of $1,502,702 for the six months ended June 30 after depreciation and federal tax, equal after preferred dividends to 20 cents on 770,000 common shares, against $2,485,784 or $1.48 a share in the 1927 period. The report includes Railway Steel Spring and Montreal Locomotive Works, Ltd.

Woodin Predicts Improvement.

W. H. Woodin, chairman of American Locomotive, said: "During the six months ended June 30 new locomotive buying by railroads was at a low ebb with the result the output of locomotive plants was the smallest of any six months in the history of the company. The business of the Railway Steel Spring Company, however, continued in moderately good volume, the profit from that source being about the same as for six months of 1927. The full amount of preferred dividends was paid out of current profits for the six months ended June 30, but of the amount required for common dividends $155,202 was paid from current earnings and $2,924,797 was drawn from surplus, which has been conserved from profits of previous years to meet the deficiences of lean business years. Although an immediate resumption of normal locomotive business is improbable, it is reasonable to expect after so long a period of buying inactivity by the railroads that a change for the better is not far distant."

Galena Signal Reorganizing.

Directors of Galena Signal Company of Pennsylvania have called a special meeting of stockholders for October 1, 1928, to vote on a plan to reorganize the company and to sell certain assets to the Texas Company. President M. J. A. Berlin points out that the company has entered into an agreement for the sale to the Texas Company of all outstanding capital stock of the French, Irish, Argentine and Brazil companies. The Texas company, he adds, has also offered to purchase certain other non-essential properties of the Galena Signal Oil Company of Texas and its subsidiary, the Galena Pipe Line Company of Texas, plus their inventories. Under the plan, a new company will be organized and preferred stock of either class of Galena Signal of Pennsylvania assenting to the reorganization will be offered $75 in cash for each share and two shares of common of a new company for each share of preferred. Present common will be offered new common share-for-share. Galena Signal of Pennsylvania with funds derived from sale of assets will retire all its bonded debt and that of its subsidiary, Galena Signal of Texas. Success of the reorganization is dependent on deposit of more than 90 per cent of all outstanding stock.

More than 52 per cent of the preferred stock and more than 39 per cent of the common stock of Galena Signal Oil are owned by the Rockefeller Foundation and American Republics Corporation. These interests have approved the plan and have agreed to deposit their shares.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

Movie Color Process, Perfected Here, Gives True Tone Values, Requires No Special Film.

PITTSBURGH is far from Hollywood, but it is making one of the outstanding contributions to the development of the motion picture art. The production of color pictures may be revolutionized by a process which has been perfected here. Negotiations are under way for the use of the invention in all phases of the industry.

YOU have not seen a real colored movie until you have seen one of the Cox multi-color films flashed on the screen. There is no fuzziness in the lines. The reds are not exaggerated. Every conceivable shade is produced in its natural value. The attractiveness from a commercial view point can be seen in the fact that the production cost is the same as for ordinary black and white film.

THE final steps toward perfection have been reached in the laboratories of the Motion Picture Producing Company on Neville street. The process was invented by Harold N. Cox and the Cox Multi-color Company has been financed entirely with local capital.

THE Eastman color process is only adaptable for amateur use since duplicate films cannot be made. The Cox process makes possible the production of any number of duplicates on standard or 16-millimeter film.

THE color processes in general use at present are expensive. They reproduce only two colors. They require special cameras, special photographers and a special laboratory.

The old processes use a separate emulsion on each side of the film. A different color is printed on each side. This shows the reds and greens, but leaves out the blues and is responsible for the unnatural color values in the picture. The thickness of the film often results in a lack of definite lines between the objects photographed.

ALL that is required for Cox pictures is a special lens for the camera and another for the projector. Otherwise the same equipment, the same staff and the same laboratories can do the work without being hampered by the technical difficulties of the other color methods.

COX color pictures remove some of the limitations of ordinary black and white motion picture work. Lavendar shades in dresses cannot be photographed against some backgrounds in black and white film because the photographic values are the same. The Cox process will reproduce any differences in color values which are distinguishable to the naked eye.

THE low cost is attained because ordinary black and white negative and positive films are used and no special treatment is necessary for printing and developing.

By the use of special lenses and color filters a separate picture is made on the film for each color. The film itself is black and white. The special lenses and color screens in the projection unit reverse the process and the picture appears on the screen, perfect in every detail.

ALTHOUGH similar ideas have been tried the technical difficulties were never before overcome. A means has been found to compensate for the shrinkage in film which gave trouble in previous color experiments.

One of the test films made here shows some fire apparatus being tried out on the wharf. A stream of water was sent into the air on a bright day. A rainbow appeared and every tint is perfectly reproduced on the film.

In addition to the proposed development of the Cox process for feature films and for commercial work it may be available for the use of amateurs with the narrow 16-millimeter film.

INCIDENTALLY the amateur interest in motion pictures is becoming an important source of revenue for the film makers. An ocean liner recently left New York for an extended cruise with 77 amateur movie enthusiasts as passengers. It is becoming common for the Eastman organization to provide facilities for the development of films on the boats.

IRREGULAR FLUCTUATIONS IN MISCELLANEOUS ISSUES

Trading dragged along in a dull manner on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, with prices in the early session showing no important changes from last night's closing and the volume of business shrinking again almost to the vanishing point.

At the end of the initial hour only two stocks had appeared on the board. A block of 300 Arkansas Gas preferred at 7¼ opened the market, the price showing no change from the figure at which the stock left off last night. The other transaction was a small lot of Lone Star Gas at 52½, a gain of ¼ over yesterday's final prices for these shares.

Dullness in the local market reflected the somewhat unsettled tone of the trading in New York, where early prices registered moderate concessions from yesterday's late quotations. The nervousness in the big market was attributed to the current higher money rate and the apprehension that this afternoon's brokers' loan statement may show an increase over last week.

Around mid-day there was a little flurry in Arkansas Gas preferred with orders in the market for about 3,000 shares. Most of the desired stock was available at 7¼.

Price movements in the miscellaneous industrials were narrow and irregular. Follansbee Brothers preferred was down two points on the initial sale at 95½, and lost another half point later. Armstrong Cork sold back up to 56½ after having changed hands at 56 yesterday. National Fireproofing was off ¼ on an odd lot transaction and May Drug was down a large fraction at 22½.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Sharp fresh upturns in the price of corn resulted early today from scantiness of offerings and from active demand. Commission houses were buyers of corn and there was much switching on the part of previous speculative sellers. Opening ⅜ to 3 cents higher, the latter for September delivery, corn afterward scored additional gains. Wheat and oats were also firmer, with wheat starting ¼ to ⅝c up, and subsequently showing a further advance. Provisions were easy.

Prices for corn showed wide variation in different sections of the trading pit today at times, simultaneous transactions in September delivery being as much as 1¼c apart. Leading holders of September sold a little on the bulges, but shortly afterward were buying. Dwindling receipts of corn tended to lift prices, Chicago arrivals today totaling only 100 cars.

Wheat sympathized with corn strength, and was also affected by an unlooked-for upturn in wheat quotations at Liverpool. Talk was also current that Russia was buying more North American wheat, and that Canada was curtailing offerings abroad. Assertions, too, were made that with Chicago wheat prices about 19c a bushel lower than a year ago, bearish conditions had already been discounted.

This week's marathon award goes to the Summerton, Arizona, Star for the following non-stop sentence—

The committees in charge are to be congratulated on the success, owing to its tireless efforts in getting the arrangements so well thought out long before the celebration, that hardly a hitch in the program was encountered, timing themselves to the minute on the proceedings as they were carried on everything was on time, which again we wish to congratulate the committee in charge of the affair should be voted a unanimous "huzzah" by everybody that was in attendance in not having long waits between the events that were scheduled.

Only a sweet, childish face and a heart whose every pulsation was love—love for him who had won it. Oh, why did Miss —— come back to London? Oh, why did she ever come back? Such a happy dream Elsie's wedded life had been thus far! And now—

DEAR MR. KABIBBLE,
SHALL I GO TO EUROPE FOR MY HONEYMOON?
L. R.
YES — FOR THE NEXT TIME YOU GO TO PARIS, IT'LL BE AT YOUR OWN EXPENSE!

Advice

"I can assure you, madam," said the doctor, "there's nothing wrong with you. All you need is a rest."

"But just look at the state of my tongue."

"Quite, madam. It needs a rest, too."

Optimist

Mrs. Bridey (at 1 a. m.): "Oh, Jack, wake up! I think there's a mouse in the room."

Husband (drowsily): "Well, just think there's a cat too, and go to sleep."

Not Yet

"I've come here to ask for your daughter's hand."

"When were you first struck by her?"

"Well—er—we've not quarrelled so far."

Foolish Question

"Darling," he cried, covering her little hands with kisses, "can't you see that I love you?"

"Well," she said, "I should hate to think this was just your way of behaving in company."

The Police "Shake-Up"

A Politically-Controlled Safety Department Is a Public Menace.

No one knows whether the latest police department "shake-up" will make for effiicency or not.

But whether for better or worse, it is quite evident that a higher standard of service was not the motive behind the change. Its scope indicates that politics had more to do with it than anything else.

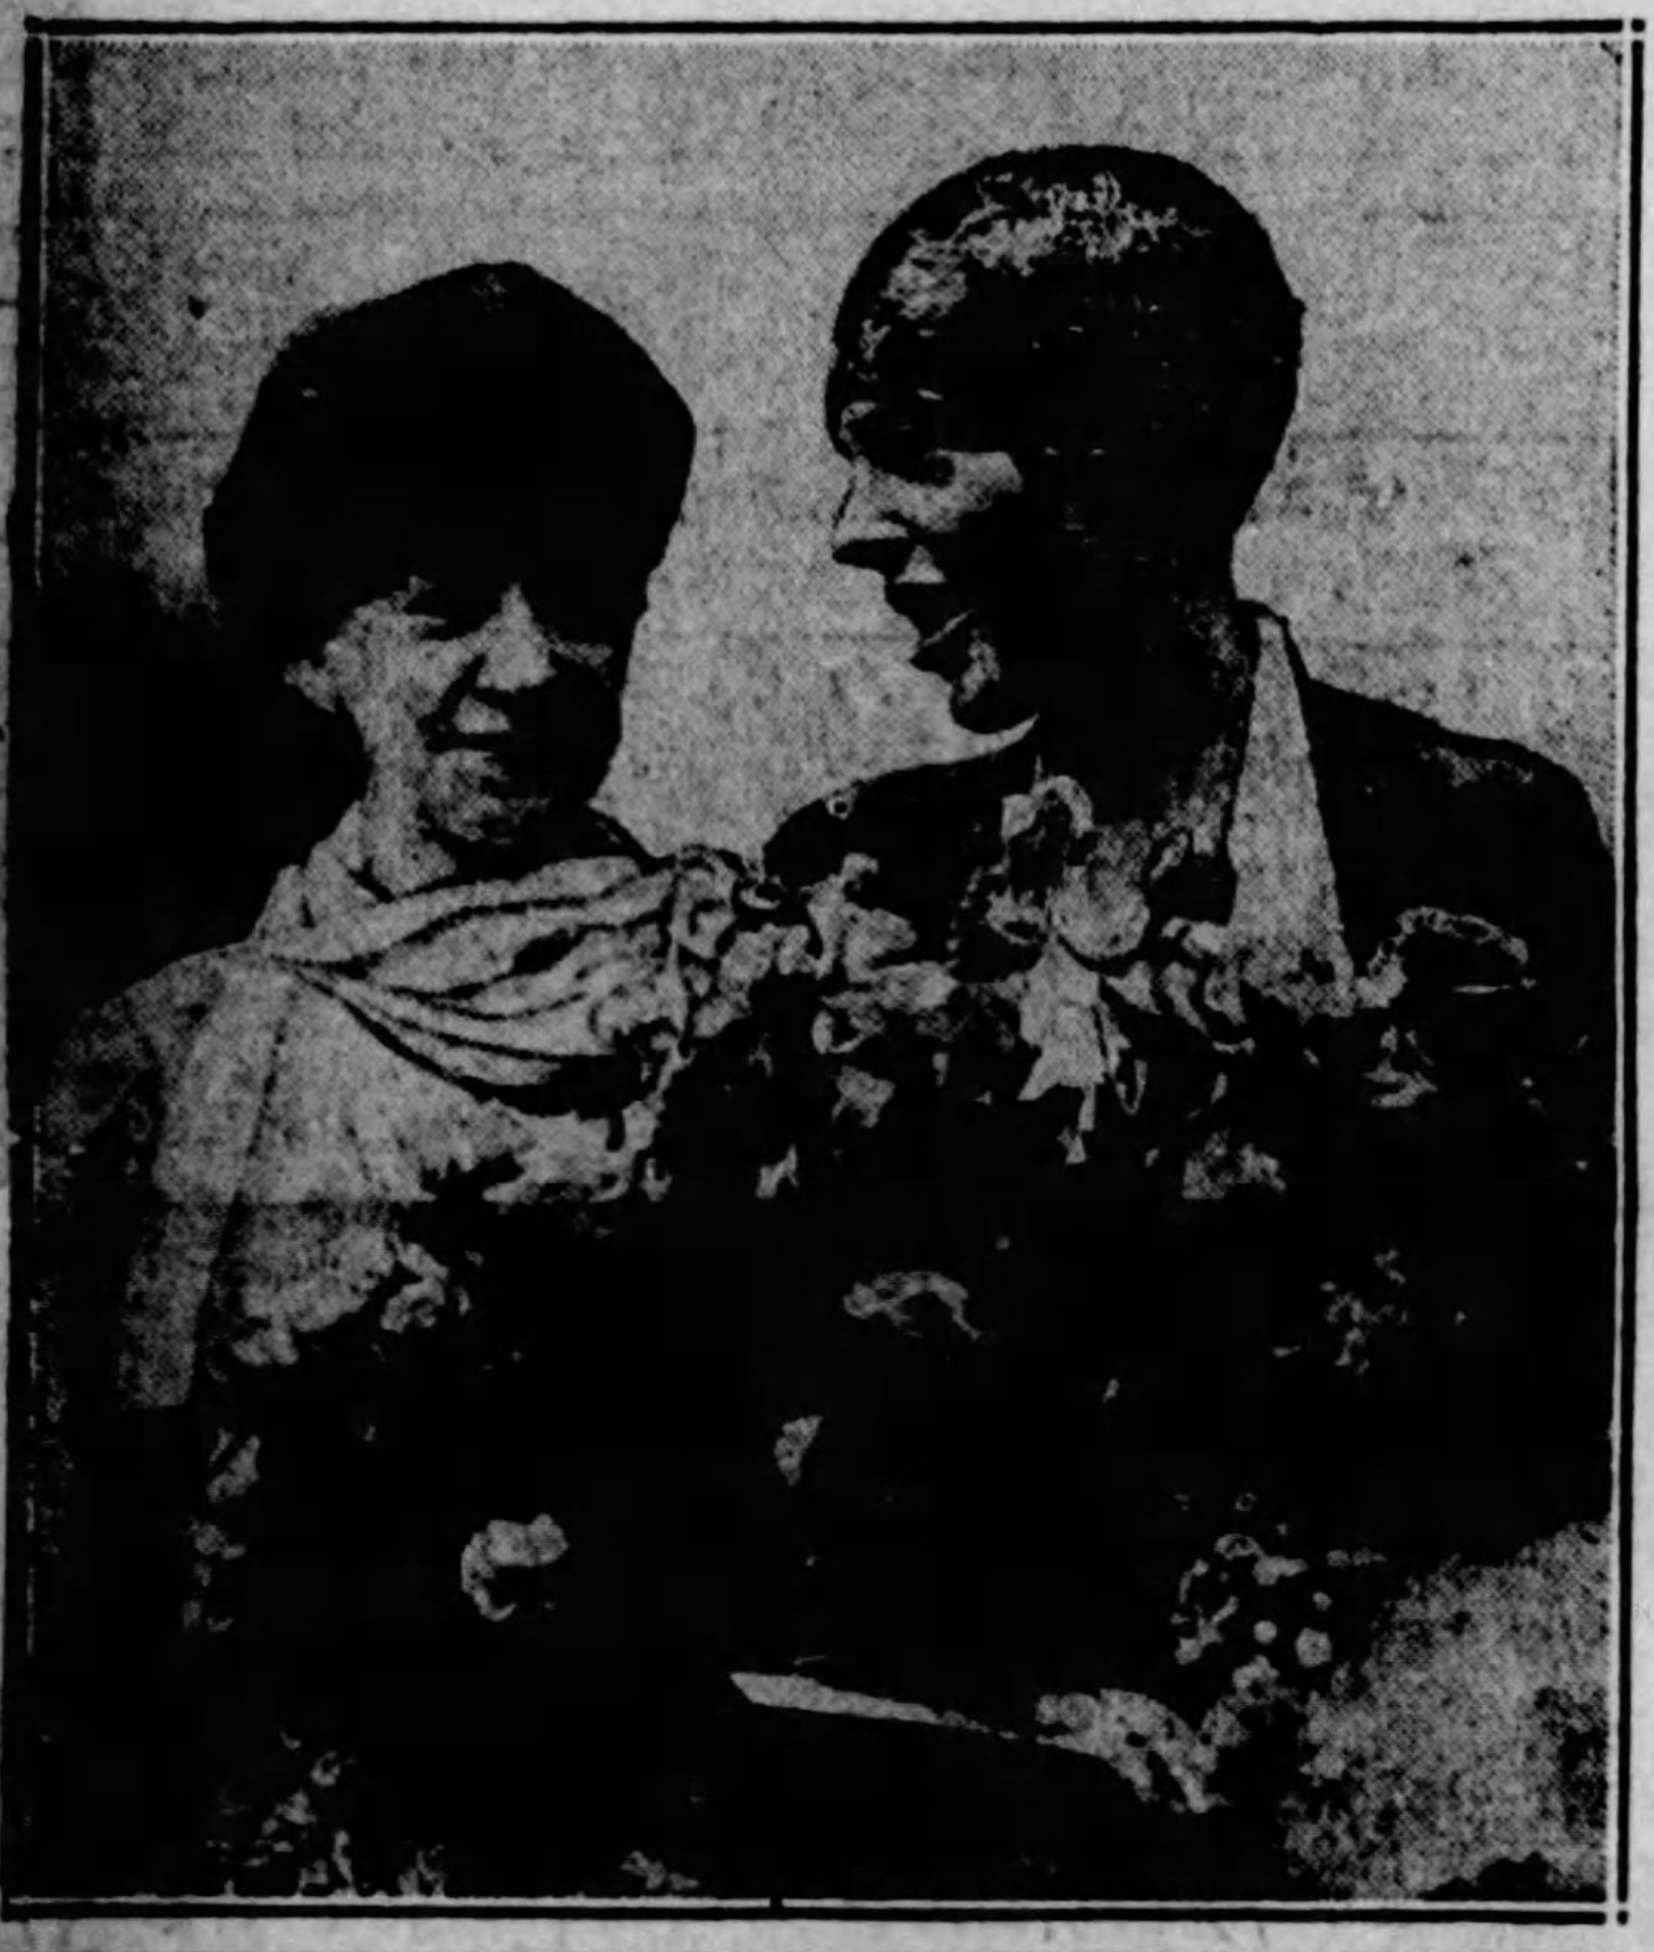
Perhaps we should not complain about that. When we leave our police department under political control we have nobody but ourselves to blame for whatever is done by those to whom we delegate the business of being bosses. Certainly, there must be discipline in a police department. The trouble is that "discipline" in a politically-controlled police department has the stretching quality of rubber.

The danger to the public when a policeman is politically controlled is very great. Most men are inclined to be honest and willing to do their duty. That applies in all walks of life, police service included. A policeman—the average one—could be depended upon to be impartial in his activities in behalf of law enforcement. But when he gets "orders" and sees "fixers" at work to "square" things in many of the arrests he makes and then sees the powers punishing him by "sending him to the sticks" in a "shake-up," what can we expect?

That is one of our most important problems. Our police department should be as efficient as the staff of a great business organization. It should be as well disciplined and as certain to strike effectively as any army. It is a problem that is worthy of the attention of some of our leaders in business and industry.

Mother and Daughter

She's a VERY PROUD Mother.



MRS. EARHART AND HER DAUGHTER, AMELIA, WHO RECENTLY FLEW THE ATLANTIC

It is a pleasure to print this picture OF A HAPPY MOTHER.

We all know that Mrs. Earhart is happy and proud; well she may be. A million mothers that see this editorial and this picture will rejoice especially in the MOTHER'S happiness, and so will millions of sons and daughters all over the country.

That Amelia Earhart's mother should have lived to see her daughter's triumph, and especially that she should have lived to have that daughter back safe in her arms, is a pleasure to the entire nation.

And here is a curious difference between mothers and fathers. You can imagine Amelia Earhart's mother saying, "My girl takes after her father. She has his courage. I knew she would succeed, for with such a father she had it in her."

If it were a young man that had come back from a flight across the ocean, the proud father would have said, "Chip of the old block. He takes after me." And you probably wouldn't have heard very much about the mother.

The angels must laugh at the vanity of fathers, and their foolish desire to have nothing but sons, when daughters are better.

Wool and Mutton—Or Dogs

Men Must Choose.

A commission investigating sheep raising in New York State says man's "best friend," the dog, makes sheep raising impossible. In 1865 New York State had 5,521,610 sheep, in 1926 only 472,616.

The commission suggests that dogs be quarantined to make possible the use of 700,000 idle acres for sheep pasture.

German police dogs are the worst sheep killers, airedales come next, according to the commission.

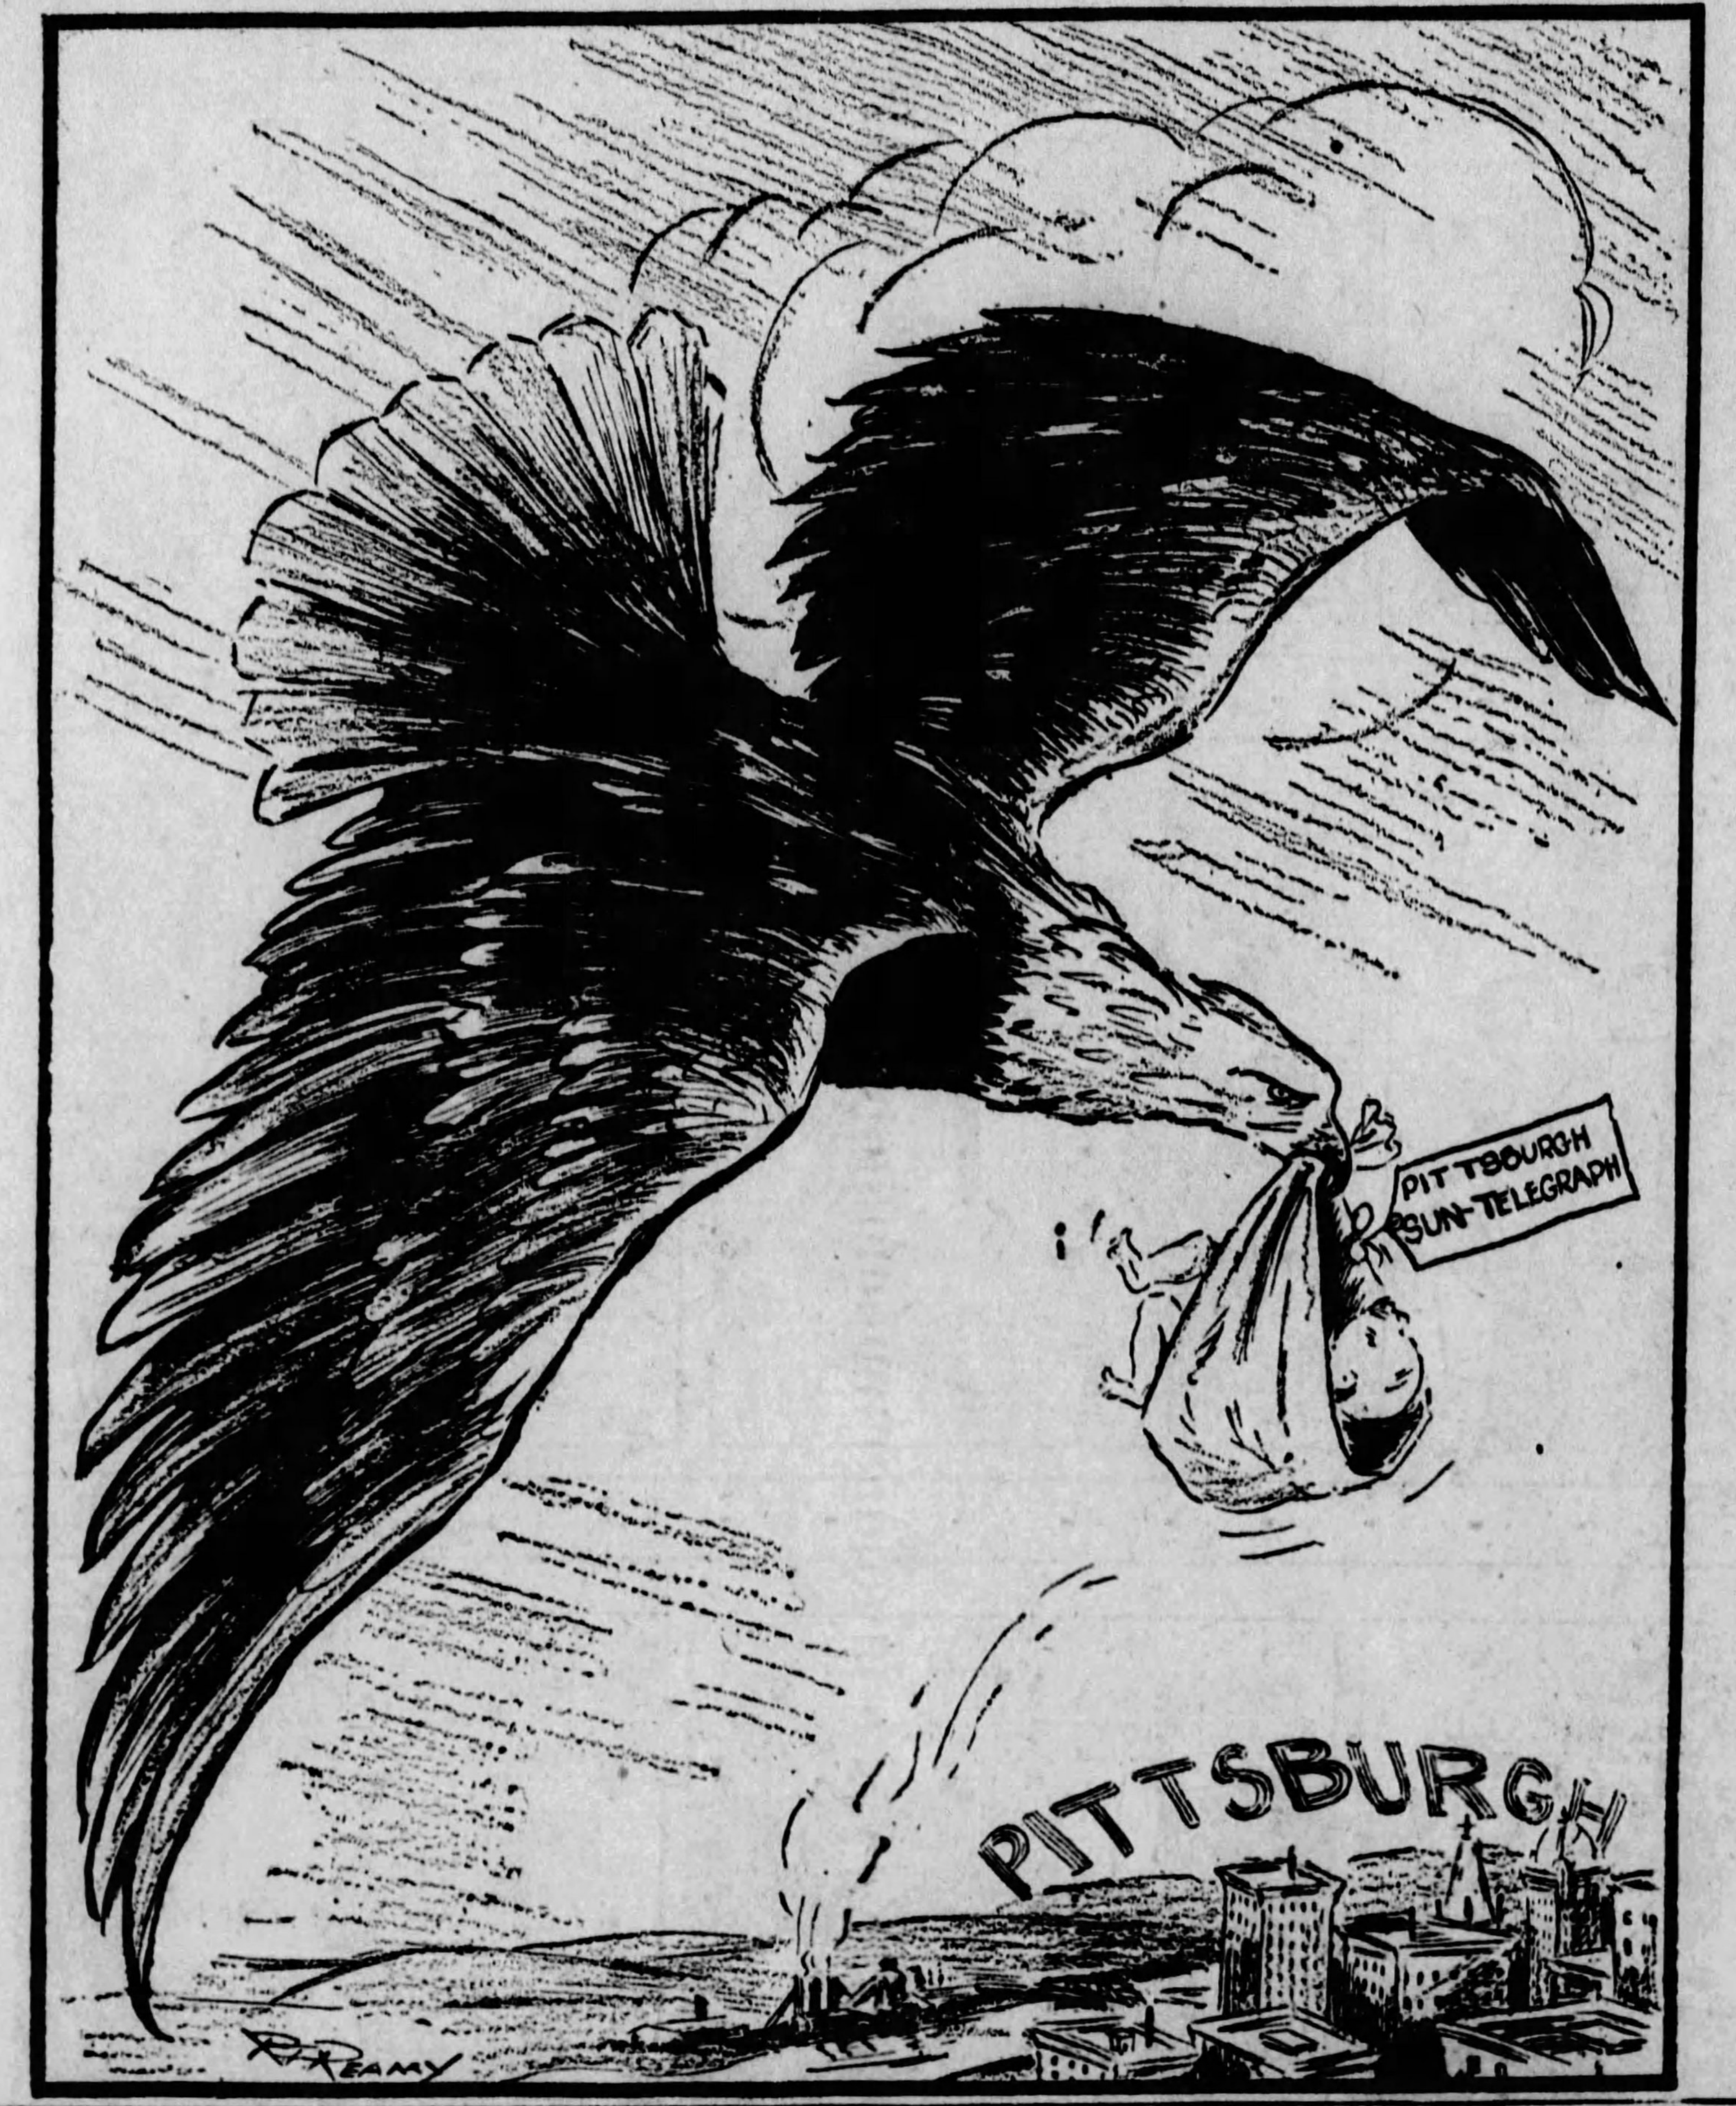
ONE YEAR AGO TODAY



Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Earth's Theories

THERE are two great rival theories concerning the origin of the earth. First, the nebular hypothesis of Laplace, according to which the earth and the other planets were formed through the breaking up of vast rings surrounding the condensing sun, the substance of each of these rings being gradually assembled into a globular planet; and, second, the planetesimal hypothesis of Chamberlin, which pictures the planets as originating by the progressive gathering up at nodal points of meteoric matter ejected from the sun at an early stage in consequence of the tidal effects produced by another great star passing near it.

The latter theory assumes that the earth began as a relatively small aggregation of such masses, which became larger and more massive as the process of accretion continued. One consequence of this would naturally be that at first the earth's gravitational power was too feeble to enable it to hold a gaseous atmosphere—just as the moon today is found to be practically airless because of its relatively slight force of gravity. But, as the earth grew in size and mass it surrounded itself with an atmosphere such as it retains at present.

The contest between these two hypotheses has not yet been entirely decided, but lately it has been shown that the newest form of the electronic theory of atomic structure tends to support the planetesimal speculation. The argument runs this way:

Certain elements, such as neon and argon, are rare on the earth, while certain others, such as oxygen and nitrogen, are very abundant. Now, neon and argon are gaseous elements which do not readily assume the liquid or solid state at ordinary temperatures, in which respect they differ from the others. So, when the earth was yet relatively small and lacking gravitative power, the neon and argon, which by the electronic theory should have been abundant, because of the stable character of their atoms, failed to take the liquid and solid state—which was readily assumed by the other elements—and so, as the temperature of the growing earth rose and their molecular activity increased, they escaped in the form of gases.

To this it might be replied that in reality Laplace's hypothesis also implies a gradual development of the size and mass of the earth, since the substance of the broken ring from which it is supposed to have been formed would have needed a long time to be gathered into the shape of a densely compacted globe. That ring must have been originally at least 584,000,000 miles in circuit; the globe of the earth is only 8,000 miles in diameter. The gases would have escaped from the nucleus of the transforming ring as readily as from that of the infalling meteors.

But another fact favoring the planetesimal idea is thus stated by Prof. W. D. Harkness: "Both chlorine and nickel are mixtures of two different kinds of atoms. Now, it has been found of nickel by Baster, and of chlorine by Stone and myself, that the composition of each of these mixtures is exactly the same on the earth as it is in meteorites."

All of this shows how it is a mistake which true science decries to insist too absolutely upon any theory. Even facts are mixed things, full of surprises.

We Turn to the Skies

THE combined air-and-rail passenger service from coast to coast, starting with a Chicago-St. Paul air link August 15, is going to be a landmark in the transportation history of the United States.

Passengers will fly by day and travel in Pullmans through the hours of darkness, eliminating the more dangerous night flying.

When in final operation the system will cut 36 hours off the time between New York and Los Angeles or San Francisco.

Air-and-rail across the continent; air-and-steamer is likely to be the first form of regular trans-Atlantic flying.

One of the most attractive features of the proposed four-day Blue Ribbon Line of 30,000-ton steamers, under the American flag, is the proposed airplane roof of these vessels.

They would thus serve as landing stages for trans-Atlantic planes. If, as proposed, the steamers sail every second day, they will be so spaced on the ocean as to constitute feasible hops for mail planes.

In addition, the steamers are to carry passenger planes which, in good weather, would enable travelers to save half a day at each end of the journey.

It would be a feather in the cap of the new American Merchant Marine if it could provide the mother ships of the trans-Atlantic air mail.

Don't Give Up the Battle

HOW are you coming on in life's battle?

Seems as if you had had your share of hard knocks, doesn't it?

Times when you wonder if it is worth what it costs to maintain the position for which you have worked so hard.

But you would not be happy if you slipped backward, would you?

If you lost out, you would be disappointed and dissatisfied.

You would wish to regain and work harder than ever to get back the very thing that causes you such financial distress.

If you allowed yourself to slip and fall down it would be harder to get back and easier to go a long way downward.

If you have pride, you will not consider a dejected attitude.

If you have a family, you want them to be well thought of, and you must set an example of grit and courageous effort.

Sometimes it is better to give up in one way and change your line of endeavor to gain the desired end.

Then it is foolish to buck against impossibilities when study of conditions has convinced you another tack is better.

But the "keep trying" spirit, don't lose that, no matter what happens.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

The Sunset

OLD time will bear youth's joys away
As ebbing waves bear drifted spray,
Foam-flowers that ride the highest crest
Must soon be scattered with the rest.

When memory alone retains
The loveliness each long year stains,
Must all my days be barren then
Because the past comes not again?

What folly! When the sunset shows
More splendor than the dawning knows!
Youth dies, a flower whose day is fleet;
But later years bring fruitage sweet.

Great Passages from the Bible

The Parable of the Labourers

(Matthew 20; 1-16)

FOR the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an householder, which went out early in the morning to hire labourers into his vineyard.

And when he had agreed with the labourers for a penny a day, he sent them into his vineyard.

And he went out about the third hour, and saw others standing idle in the marketplace.

And said unto them; Go ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoever is right I will give you. And they went their way.

Again he went out about the sixth and ninth hour, and did likewise.

And about the eleventh hour he went out, and found others standing idle, and saith unto them, Why stand ye here all the day idle?

They say unto him, Because no man hath hired us. He saith unto them, Go ye also into the vineyard; and whatsoever is right, that shall ye receive.

So when even was come, the lord of the vineyard saith unto his steward, Call the labourers, and give them their hire, beginning from the last unto the first.

And when they came that were hired about the eleventh hour, they received every man a penny.

But when the first came, they supposed that they should have received more; and they likewise received every man a penny.

And when they had received it, they murmured against the goodman of the house,

Saying, These last have wrought but one hour, and thou hast made them equal unto us, which have borne the burden and heat of the day.

But he answered one of them, and said, Friend, I do thee no wrong: didst not thou agree with me for a penny?

Take that thine is, and go thy way: I will give unto this last, even as unto thee.

Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own? Is thine eye evil, because I am good?

So the last shall be first, and the first last: for many be called, but few chosen.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

OF COURSE a woman has got a pretty good grouch against her husband for bringing home somebody to dinner without telling her. I reckon that causes a lot of trouble in the married world. But men are mighty forgetful, and they think it don't matter much anyhow.

One guy was taking his friend home, and the friend says, "Say, Brown, I was in your office all afternoon, and I didn't hear you phone your wife that I was coming home with you. Didn't you forget?"

"Oh, no!" he says. "We fought that out before I left this morning, and she's to be darn nice to you besides feeding you dinner."

Her Secret

"WHAT party do you affiliate with?" asked the clerk of Mandy Jones who had come to register.

"Does Ah have to answer dat question?" asked Mandy.

"That is the law," replied the clerk.

"Den yo' kin jes' scratch my name offen dat book. Ah don't want to vote effen Ah has to tell his name. Why he ain't even got his divohce yit."

His Emergency Bedroom

TWO neighbors were looking over the dividing fence.

"What on earth made you get such an enormous kennel for that tiny dog of yours?" asked one.

The other turned and looked at his dog's kennel. Then he swung round and faced his questioner, a smile hovering round his mouth.

"Well, between you and me," he explained, "it's because I sometimes come home late and my wife locks the door!"

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The modern theater owes much to the buskers of an unregenerate past. The busker flourished in hell-roaring days of Nigger Mike Salter, The Flea Bag, Piggy Donovans, Steve Brodies and other sawdust carpeted joints on the Bowery.

The buskers were gutter gamins who danced and sang for pitched pennies in the blowzy back rooms of beer saloons. A few of the ilk Charleston and Black Bottom on sidewalks in the Forties uptown but most of them vanished with the saloon.

Many buskers are today feather-footed dancers and silver-throated singers we now pay $8 a seat to see and hear. George White in the days he was known as "Swifty the Messenger" in the tenderloin was a busker. So was Izzy the Singing Waiter before he became Irving Berlin.

Harlan Dixon was also one of the migratory tribe. The list is long and many are a little reticent about the early struggles, now that their names are hung up in lights. There are two famous female dancers and a comedienne who began as buskers.

The busker began his circuit of the barrooms shortly before midnight, when customers, waxing a little mellow, were liable to be loose with their change. He usually carried his own orchestra—a tattered companion who was adept with the harmonica.

He moved from dive to dive, doing his stuff for humanity's scum until the sun cast a bleary eye over the hectic revels. The busker at 12 knew more of the seamy side of life than most men at 30. He heard the coarsest in conversation and the foulest in epithets.

He knew the cellar haunts of burglars and the reception rooms of unspeakable bordels. And it is almost incredible so many came through the consuming fire unscorched. Three former buskers, incidentally, are today rated as millionaires.

There is a long list, too, of successful theatrical producers who began their careers as ushers. The alert usher, if not too desperately in love with his uniform, learns more of the enthusiasms and reactions of an audience than any other person in the theater. They learn to know exactly the public's entertainment taste which is invaluable to a producer.

Many have an idea all restaurants on the Bowery are little dirty spoon holes in the wall with bare tables, scar-faced waiters and menus frosted on front windows. There are several cafes there, however, that are almost as smart as will be found uptown. Waiters are immaculately groomed, there is silence that is dignified and such dishes as "sole meuniere" and "pommes soutees"—I don't know either—are listed.

Probably the biggest electrically lighted cross in the world will shortly twinkle on New York's hardest boiled thoroughfare—Broadway. It will be a forty-two foot structure topping a new skyscraper church. It is noticeable churches in the Broadway section are often better filled with regular attendants than churches elsewhere in the city.

After all it is not Broadway that is entertainment mad, but the people who go there. Broadway merely purveys to the pleasure loving. A large percentage of Broadway merchants live in the country and go in for simple suburban pleasures.

A movie caption similies: "The crowd moved slowly like a cow through the village streets." The cow I used to lead from pasture must have been part gazelle. She took me home so fast every evening I got so I didn't bother to touch third.

The Intellectual Life

By DR. FRANK CRANE

It is refreshing to note that a memorandum from the Student Council has been addressed to the university authorities at Yale formulating a series of reforms upholding the proposition that a college is primarily a place for study, and only incidentally for social and athletic recreation.

This will be refreshing to a number of fathers who are digging in to pay the expenses of their sons at school and heretofore have been worried because those sons seem to be more interested in sports and in social advantages than in intellectual improvement.

Of course every healthy boy is interested in athletics and is anxious to form proper social connections. But the general impression prevails among fathers that boys ought to go to school to improve themselves from the chin up and not from the chin down.

It has been too often the case that boys have attached a social stigma to those who get class marks higher than C. Those who go in for study have been characterized as "sharks" or "grinds." Reference to one's studies in social life has been looked upon with disdain and the only thing to be boasted is a place on the football team or the rowing crew.

Of course a boy is a healthy animal and he doesn't care to be subjected to intellectual snobbery, but at the same time, this New Haven memorandum asserts, a college finds its reason for being and its prestige in the achievements of the intellectual minority among students.

It has been generally presumed that the youth of the country is somewhat wild and is out for a good time only. Those who emphosize the things that are intellectual in any group of people must necessarily be in the minority, but it is refreshing to see that this minority has been coming in to better repute during the last 15 years. There are probably quite as many serious-minded youths in the country as there ever were. Youth is not at all out for a wastrel life. There still remain quite a number of the elect. And on the whole the prospect for a better world in the future is bright.

This memorandum suggests that after the first two years the men who are assiduous in their studies are to be separated from those who are going in for a good time and barely enough study to get by. The honor men's instructors should be largely tutorial and they should have the best men on the faculty.

It is needless to say that this proposal of the undergraduates has the entire sympathy of the faculty.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

TALK about women liking to clutter up the place with pets, you should know Dr. Samuel Ginsburg. I've never heard any story of a kind hearted woman that equalled the story of this New York doctor, who lives on West End avenue, and who fathers broken birds.

Each year when the birds come North, unaccustomed to the very high buildings, many of them strike against the sky scrapers and fall with broken legs or wings.

Dr. Ginsburg and a friend of his, another man, have a favorite corner, near an especially high building, where they go in the very early morning hours, and find these injured birds lying on the sidewalk. They go there before the pedestrians trample the little things, or the street cleaners sweep them up.

The doctor takes the birds home, mends their broken members. And when they are whole again, he lets them fly away—happy.

His home is a veritable bird hospital. Some of the birds were so badly injured they died. Some, a very few, have lived and been crippled, and those still live at the Ginsburg home and are called pet names, and limp around happily, under the loving care of this good man.

And besides the little birds, Dr. Ginsburg has a parrot. Miss Fanny Ginsburg is her name, and she is never happier than when the doctor has time to talk to her.

There happens to be in this happy home, a couple of small dogs. They may not be his, but a close friend who told me about the doctor, and who was visiting him the other night, saw the little dogs wrestling and catching the spirit of the house, feeling that because they were dumb animals they could behave as they please.

They made considerable noise, and the parrot, Miss Fanny, watched them a while and then, in a loud strident voice yelled: "Stop that. Stop that!"

Dr. Ginsburg thinks that being kind to helpless creatures that can't help themselves is more fun than piling up riches, or making public speeches.

I wouldn't be the least bit surprised, if the birds have spread the good word about their friend in New York, and it is barely possible that when they do hit this tower and fall, they feel that if they can stay out from under the street sweepers eye, and can wait a little while, Dr. Ginsburg will come and get them.

I never knew a woman, with a great big heart, who did anything any kinder than this. I never heard of any other man who would get up at 4 a. m. to get to the city and note the sparrows fall. I haven't seen the doctor yet, but I'm going to. I want to see the eyes of a man with a heart like that.

Isn't It So?

Theory may raise a man's hopes, but practice raises his wages.

Many a man who is the big noise in the office is only a little queak at home.

If you have an ax to grind, a little flattery will act as the best motive power.

A boy with a car has a bigger "drag" with the girls than a boy with a good job.

A man may be justified in complaining that he leads a dog's life if his wife is catty.

The man who trusts to luck should be sure his emergency brake is in good working order.

At any rate, while you are standing up for your own rights you can't very well be sitting on other people's.
